CASTLE PEAK MONKS FIND HYSTERICAL GIRL WITH CORPSE

SILENCE ON PRELIMINARY NAVAL TALKS

No Indication Of
"Feelings."

1930 PARLEY'S RECALLED

London, Yesterday.
Complete silence surrounds the discussions in connection with the forthcoming Naval Conference. Both the Foreign Office and the Admiralty refuse to issue any comment, and it is believed that discussions have not yet gone any further than preliminary feelers.

It will be recalled that conversations held prior to the 1930 Naval Conference materially contributed to its success.

Among the subjects which will doubtless be discussed are the date and place of the Conference, and also which other Powers should be invited.

It is understood that neither France nor Italy have yet replied to the British invitation, but it is understood that both will accept.

On the initiative of the British Government, communications have been exchanged recently between the governments of the principal naval powers, regarding the question of whether it is advisable or helpful to plan to hold preliminary diplomatic talks on technical questions and procedure in view of the Naval Conference in 1935. No actual meeting of representatives of the naval powers is contemplated at present, but the United States has already intimated that she favours conversations.

TIN CONSUMPTION INCREASE.

1933-34 Figures Rise
By 29 Per Cent.

RESEARCH COUNCIL'S BULLETIN.

London, Yesterday.
The May bulletin of the International Tin Research and Development Council shows a 29 per cent. increase in tin consumption for the year ending March, 1934, as compared with the previous year.

This amounts to approximately 729,000 long tons as compared with 100,920 long tons, the March consumption being 10,300 long tons, as compared with 9,306 long tons. The American consumption was 58,777 long tons, as compared with 35,902 long tons, this being the most encouraging feature.

Tin plate production, amounting to 3,230,000 tons, shows an increase of nearly 1,000,000 tons over last year. The bulletin concludes by pointing out that the world automobile production for the year amounted to 3,163,000 units, as compared with 2,005,000 units last year.—Reuter.

PUBLIC GRANARIES IMPROVED.

Storage Started In Canton District.

Canton, Yesterday.
By order of the Provincial Department of Civil Affairs, various county governments have been hastening to build or repair public granaries for storage of grain to meet the demand in the future.

It is learned that up to the present time, there are over 30 counties in this province where public granaries have been built and storage has been started.—Central Press.

LETTERS SUGGEST SUICIDE PACT

CHAN TOOK POISON SAYS HALF-DEMENTED GIRL

FAMILY-ARRANGED MARRIAGE
ALLEGED RESPONSIBLE

WHITE SUBSTANCE IN TUMBLER

A married man's love for a Chinese school-girl, a clandestine meeting, and a suspected suicide pact has been revealed by the discovery, in the hills behind the Castle Peak monastery, on Thursday afternoon, of a pretty Chinese girl embracing the dead body of a Chinese man.

Many of the facts surrounding this strange tragedy are still unknown as, at the time of the discovery, the girl, Miss Della Ho, residing at No. 23, Wong Nei Cheong Road, Happy Valley, was too hysterical to answer questions and has since been removed to the Government Civil Hospital.

A BOTTLE BELIEVED TO HAVE CONTAINED POISON WAS, HOWEVER, DISCOVERED AT THE SCENE, INDICATING SUICIDE. Letters found by the side of the dead man are said to contain sufficient information to lead to the belief that a suicide pact had been planned as the result of Chan Wang-chin, the deceased, being forced by his family into marriage with another woman. The Castle Peak district had been chosen because "it was quiet with beautiful surroundings and much preferable to a room in a boarding house."

It is learned that the deceased, Chan Wang-chin, age 30, an assistant accountant at the Bank of Canton, arrived in Hong Kong on Wednesday. On Wednesday night, Miss Ho left her residence without stating where she was going, and returned home very late. She again left the house on Thursday morning at 8 a.m., and it is understood that she accompanied Chan to Castle Peak in the bus. On arrival at Castle Peak, it appears that the couple walked to a secluded spot in the hills behind the monastery, carrying with them a basket of apples, several bottles of drink, including a bottle of gin, sleeping drugs, and a narcotic.

The gin bottle was subsequently found empty near the scene of the tragedy, while a tumbler, found nearby, contained a white substance in the bottom.

The discovery of the body was made by Pun Yan a shopkeeper from Castle Peak, at about 3 p.m. He was attracted to the spot by the sound of sobbing, and saw the Chinese girl clasping the body and crying bitterly.

"CHAN TOOK POISON"
It is stated that the girl told him that Chan had taken poison and that she had also taken some.

It appears that after being seen by the villagers, Miss Ho forsook her death-watch and went to the monastery, where she was seen sitting at a table by Mr. M. G. Leung, an accountant of the General Post Office, who was visiting the monastery with a party from Hong Kong. She later got up and went away.

Mr. Leung then overheard one of the monks say that a dead body had been found on the hillside. He became curious and questioned a servant, who was immediately silenced by a monk. Mr. Leung then walked along the path from the monastery and saw several monks assembled.

On closer inspection he saw that they were standing near a corpse. Miss Ho was lying on the ground clasping the corpse tightly and was crying.

From a bundle of letters which one of the monks was holding, Mr. Leung obtained the girl's address, and on his return to Hong Kong, he broke the news to the girl's family.

LETTERS BY BODY

Letters were found at the dead man's side, and these were given to his younger brother, who came to Hong Kong yesterday and took the body to Canton for burial. It is stated that the deceased was a married man with two daughters and a son.

It is understood that the letters disclose that the couple had premeditated suicide and had chosen Castle Peak because "it was quiet, with beautiful surroundings and much preferable to a room in a boarding house."

The letters are also said to disclose that the pair were deeply in love, and had agreed to be married. Chan, however, was called to Canton, where his marriage with another woman had been arranged by his family. The old love still remained, and, finding no way out of the difficulty, they had decided on a suicide pact.

POLICE INSPECTOR'S TASK

On the arrival of Acting-Sub-Inspector Kellett, from Ping Shan Police Station, the hysterical girl was still embracing the body, but the officer finally persuaded her to leave. An ambulance was summoned and the girl was removed in it to Hong Kong.

Miss Ho, whose Chinese name is Ho Kin-kwan, is the daughter of Mr. Ho Chok-lam, who owns several stores in the Colony, including a leather shop in Lower Lascar Row.

Miss Ho's close friendship with Chan appears to have been kept a close secret from her family. The deceased is the brother of Miss Ho's sister's husband.

LAWSON LITTLE WINS GOLF TITLE

WALLACE FAILS TO WIN HOLE AGAINST AMERICAN

London, Yesterday

Playing under ideal conditions and before a gallery of 5,000, W. Lawson Little, 24-year-old Harvard University undergraduate and American Walker Cup player, overcame James Wallace, of Troon, by 14 and 13 in the 36 holes final of the British Amateur Golf Championship at Prestwick to-day.

Little, by superlative golf, was 6 up at the ninth, and 12 up at the 18th, having taken 66 strokes to Wallace's 79.

Little's card was as follows:—

4	3	3	4	3	3	5	4	4	= 33
4	3	5	4	3	4	3	4	3	= 33

His aggregate was the lowest ever recorded in any British Championship round. Little's drives were the longest, and his second shots were most accurate.

Wallace, who secured special permission for a day off from the sawmill where he is now working, failed to win a single hole.—Reuter.

JAPAN ATTACKED BY DR. WANG

Useless To Subscribe
To Any Treaty.

TWISTED STIPULATIONS

London, Yesterday.

Dr. C. C. Wang, Chairman of the London Chinese Association, in a letter to the Manchester Guardian, contrasts Japan's solemn assurance that she "scrupulously observes all treaty agreements in force as regards China" with the stipulations of the Nine Power Treaty, especially Clause No. 1.

Yet, Japan has wrested from China four of her richest Provinces, and has set up a Puppet Government in which all control is in Japanese hands.

Dr. Wang says that it is useless to subscribe to any Treaty, when the stipulations can thus be twisted to mean exactly the opposite of the real meaning.

Therefore, the acceptance of Japan's assurance was bound to shake the foundations of international morality and to place a premium on Treaty violation, he declares.—Reuter.

WEATHER FORECAST

Cloudy, with moderate east winds, was the weather forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night.

A ridge of moderately high pressure extends from the Yangtze Valley to Japan; pressure remains relatively low over Indo-China and the China Sea.

RIOTING IN AMERICA

DISORDERS RENEWED AT TOLEDO

ROOSEVELT SEES NO
CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Lorry-Drivers
Appeased.

NEW YORK, YESTERDAY.

WHILE THE STRIKE OF LORRY-DRIVERS IN MINNEAPOLIS WHICH LED TO RIOTS IN WHICH ONE PERSON WAS KILLED AND 100 PERSONS INJURED, HAS NOW BEEN SETTLED, THE PLANS ADVANCED BY THE FEDERAL MEDIATOR, MR. CHARLES TART, TO END THE STRIKE AT TOLEDO HAVE BEEN REJECTED BY THE STRIKERS.

Rioting showed signs of dying down last night, while 1,900 members of the Union met to vote, but disorders were renewed this morning, in which the casualties include a Lieutenant of the National Guard and one civilian, who were wounded by snipers. The civilian was wounded in the jaw while standing in the courtyard of his own home.

President Roosevelt is watching the situation in Toledo very closely, but he sees no cause for undue alarm.

It is considered unlikely that, if the Federal Government should step in, it would use troops, but it might bring pressure to bear on the employers to induce them to accept the strikers' demands, if these are considered to be reasonable.—Reuter.

DISSENSION MAY HOLD UP SILVER BILL

Cornering Of Market
Will Be Checked.

"ULTIMATE PRICE RAISE"

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received May 26, 8.11 a.m.)

Washington, Yesterday.

Disension among the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee members threatens to delay the Silver Bill.

The Democrats sought to restrict the hearings to Administration witnesses, whereas the Republicans demanded that the Opposition also be heard, to which the Chairman, Representative Robert L. Doughton, agreed.

Mr. Hermann Oliphant, General Counsel for the Treasury, revealed that the Treasury gold stocks were U.S.$7,765,847,568 and silver stocks U.S.$892,901,885. He told the Committee that the Bill would enable the Administration to break any speculative attempt to corner the silver market.

The Bill, he said, would ultimately raise the price of silver.

SPECULATORS AFFECTED

The Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, urging the retention of the proposed tax of 50 cents on silver profits, told the Committee that the tax would only affect speculators, as legitimate business was exempted.—United Press, S.C. Gold Bar Co.

OFFENDED THE STATE

Soviet Officials Face
Grave Charge.

ILLEGAL FOOD SELLING

Moscow, Yesterday.

Twenty-nine high officials, mostly Members of the Communist Party, are among a large gang which is being tried at Kiev tomorrow on a charge of illegal selling of food and clothing in the Ukraine.

It is alleged that they diverted State property, which they sold privately for their own profit.

The maximum penalty for this offence is death by shooting.—Reuter.

SHORT STORY.*INTO THE LION'S MOUTH

By PHILIP CURTISS.

TO the outward eye the Twickenhams were an ideal couple, but there was one source of discord, one persistent black thread which marred the otherwise perfect texture of their married life.

The fact was that Jim Twickenham, by nature, was a straight-line doer, while Emily was a ground-coverer. To complete the metaphor already suggested, if both of them had been football players, Jim would have been the kind of old-fashioned back that puts down his head, shuts his eyes, and plunges straight ahead until somebody stops him, whereas Emily would have been at her best in a broken field. She would have kept the grandstands in ecstasy for minutes at a time while she circled an end, dodged a tackler, ran five yards forward, ran three yards backward, stumbled, turned a somersault, and finally threw a lateral pass—which isn't allowed.

For example: If Jim were sitting in front of the living-room fire and should remember that he had left his glasses upstairs, he would go up, put his hand on them in the dark, return and sit down again. Then, if he found that his pipe was stopped up, he would go to his tool chest, get a bradawl, clean his pipe, wipe off the bradawl, put it back in the tool chest, and sit down once more in front of the fire.

On the other hand, if Emily should go up-stairs to get her needle-case, that would remind her that Jim's stockings might need darning. While she was looking for the stockings, that in turn would suggest that it would be a good time to sort the laundry. Before that was finished she would remember that the towels in the guest bathroom had not been changed. While she was arranging the towels on the racks in a deft echelon she would wonder how the guest room would look if she moved in the braided rugs from the little sewing room at the head of the stairs. The result would be that, flushed with achievement, she would return to the living room at about quarter to twelve and find Jim banking up the fires for the night.

As individual lines of conduct, the two systems might have existed side by side, might in fact have complemented each other very neatly, but the real trouble was that Jim and Emily constantly tried to impose his or her methods on the other. If Jim got up after lunch and said, "By the way, Emily, I'm just going to run over to Fred Ferry's to look at his new pointer," Emily would reply, "Splendid! But wait until I've written a couple of letters. Then you can go by way of the Millroad and drop me at the country club. And while you've got out the station wagon, why don't you load in the washing machine and see if the power company people can find out what's the matter with it?"

The result would be that, after a while, if Jim went out at all he would do it sneakingly, furtively pretending that he was merely stepping into the door-yard to look at a loose pane of glass in the pump house.

Even so, Jim was just as bad himself, for if Emily drove into town to see a matinee, Jim would begin to fuss and fidget from four o'clock onward. At five he would figure that the matinee must have been out at least ten minutes and, hence, that Emily should be home by twenty minutes past six. At ten minutes past six he would go out and turn on the porch light. At quarter past he would begin cracking ice for cocktails. By half-past six he would be listening to the sound of every car that drove by the door.

At a quarter to seven he would telephone Fred Ferry, whose wife had also gone, and when, at twenty minutes to nine, Emily finally showed up, having in the meantime bought a new dress which she had brought with her a box but had decided not to keep, having met at a tea room in Greenwich a friend who had suggested that they all run over to Darien to see another friend's new baby, having stopped at a greenhouse in New Cannan to see if the man had any winter ferns, having waited while the man telephoned to a brother who kept another greenhouse somewhere on the Hudson, and having finally decided, as a timesaver, to try the new road home, only to find that it was still under construction between East Farms and Depford—when Emily, having done all this, finally showed up, she would find Jim waiting with the tight lips and icy politeness of a Christian saint who had been led to the stake just once too often.

In spite of incidents such as these, the Twickenhams had always bumbled along well enough until one autumn day two stolid, rather horsey-looking men called at the house and, after certain cumbrous preliminaries, asked Jim whether he would be willing to run for the Legislature. Jim was greatly astonished and strangely touched; but Emily, at first thought the whole matter very amusing.

Like many people who live within commuting distance of New York, it always required a distinct effort of the will for her to realize that she was legally a resident of Connecticut. Also, in a vague way, she probably thought that it was somewhat ridiculous and affected for a tiny State like Connecticut to have a legislature at all. But when she found that other people were distinctly impressed, her views changed completely. All famous statesmen, she was told, began their careers in the rural counties.

After a term in the legislature Jim could easily become a State senator and then, the first thing she knew, she might find herself the wife of the Ambassador to England. As election time approached Emily began to picture herself as a sort of Lady Astor, calling, in simple tweeds, from cottage to cottage, or facing huge mobs of hostile miners at the hustings.

She soon found that nothing of this sort would be required. The township was overwhelmingly Republican and Jim was to be the machine candidate. All that he was expected to do was to appear on the night of the party caucus and possibly say a few awkward, hesitating words, just to show that he was a practical man of affairs and not one of these crazy college professors. Nevertheless, when the first Tuesday in October arrived both Emily and Jim were visibly nervous. Dressed in a plain, dark suit and stiff collar, Jim was downstairs and ready at five o'clock in the afternoon and at half-past seven they left the house.

At the head of their formal notepaper the Twickenhams had the embossed information that their place was in Deanfield, their post office address South Plymouth, their railroad station Mount Carmel, N.Y., and their telephone number Danbury 3784; but in the eyes of the law they were citizens of Allenville. Allenville proper, the political nerve centre of the township was a dismal little brick-block and Nick's-Palace-Lunch sort of place which lay clustered round a patent-medicine factory. It was at least five miles from Deanfield, over country roads, and the Twickenhams had covered about half this distance when suddenly Emily gave a cry of anguish.

"Jim! Stop. We've got to go back. We've forgotten the Keever's."

Jim let the car dribble to a halt, but he kept his foot on the clutch pedal. "What do you mean we've forgotten the Keever's?"

"Why, I told May," explained Emily, "that we'd stop and pick them up. It would be much more fun for us all to go together."

Jim painfully looked at his watch in the faint glow of the dashlight. "But, Emily," he argued, nervously, "there isn't time now. We'd better go on and telephone them from Allenville."

"Good heavens and earth!" retorted Emily. "It won't take you twenty minutes to drive back to Deanfield and then to Allenville. Besides, I want to borrow May's grey fox neck-piece. That's why I wore this suit."

For a moment Jim sat with his hand on the wheel, saying nothing. Then carefully he backed the car round in the narrow road. He opened the door, climbed out, and shut the door again.

"You go back," he said quietly.

"I'm going to Allenville."

Emily laughed. "Don't be a fool."

"No," replied Jim, "I won't be a fool. For once in my life I'm going to be at the place I said I'd be—and at the time expected."

Emily ceased to laugh. "All right, if that's the way you feel about it...." Slipping into the driver's seat, she threw off the emergency brake and started the car. Jim watched the tail light rocking up the road, then resolutely set out for Allenville.

It was not, however, as easy as he had thought, when the lights of the car were gone and darkness had settled down about him. For a "Modern medical skill is doing everything possible to reduce maternal mortality resulting from preventable factors, but women must also help themselves."

LATEST IDEA IN SILKS

Printed Material Called "In The Money."

THE newest things in printed silks for spring are called "In the Money" prints. They represent the gold-silver inflation arguments, but without taking sides. They are made in a series of eight patterns of five colours each—40 different colours in all. Those of us who have had glimpses at them agreed that they were the last word in the "new deal" for dining out, tea dances, country clubs, and even the "Tag End" dresses for those occasions when anybody might wear anything and yet nobody seems exactly sure of what will be the right thing.

Spectacular Names. The "In the Money" prints are the idea of the promoter of George Dooley, who has named more official White House colours for Presidents' wives than any other silk man of the times. The spectacular names given the new silks include: "Silver Coin," "Bi-Metallic Standard," "Stabilized Dollar," "Commodity Dollar," "Baloney Dollar," "Hoarded Dollar," "Fluctuating Dollar," and "Dropping Dollar." A number of them show a real sense of humour, while others venerate the tragedy of existing circumstances.

SEVEN-A-SIDE RUGBY TOURNEY.

Barbarians Win On Debut Appearance

HARLEQUINS FAIL

The ninth annual Seven-A-Side competition, held under the auspices of the Middlesex County Union in aid of the Middlesex Hospital, was brought to a conclusion recently before a record crowd of nearly 15,000 people, which included H.R.H. Prince Arthur of Connaught.

The Barbarians, newcomers to the competition, won an extremely exciting final by 2 tries to 1 after forty minutes' play instead of the normal twenty minutes. Their team included five Scottish internationals—J. Beattie, J. Graham, J. A. Waters, H. Lind and K. C. Fyfe—and was completed by R. A. Gerard, of England, and B. T. V. Cowey, of Wales.

HARLEQUINS OVERWHELMED

In the fifth round, the Barbarians overwhelmed the Harlequins, who have never before failed to reach the final, by two goals and three tries (19 points) to one try (3 points). First Lind sent Beattie over; then, Graham starting passing from the kick-off, Gerard sailed inside Gibbs, whose over-taking tackle was just too late; and just before the interval Waters dribbled over for Fyfe to convert. Beattie and Cowey scored tries for the winners in the second half, Fyfe adding goal points to Beattie's, which Prescott was responsible for the solitary Harlequin try, which was unconverted.

Other fifth-round matches resulted as follows:—

RAIN HOLDS UP THE DAVIS CUP.

U.S. v. Canada Doubles Match Postponed.

Wilmington, Delaware, Yesterday.

The Davis Cup doubles match between America and Canada was postponed yesterday owing to rain.—Reuter.

America is leading in the contest by 2 matches to nil, having carried off both the singles matches on Thursday when Lester Stofen beat Marcel Ralaville, and Frank X Shields beat Walter Martin.

America will be represented in the doubles match by George M. Lott and John A. Van Ryn.

MRS. WILLS MOODY'S DECISION

No Big Tennis This Year

Mr. Helen Wills Moody, the famous lawn tennis player, has announced that she will not participate in major competitive tennis this summer.

It is true that I shall not be competing in the Wimbledon Cup matches at Wimbledon in June," Mrs. Wills Moody said.

"I feel very badly about it, but the injury to my back still pains me and I realise that it would be foolish for me to attempt anything so strenuous as playing at Wimbledon."

There was a considerable outcry before the American team left New York as, until this year, members had been allowed $200 for their expenses. This year they went to Scotland on a ten-day liner with their allowance cut to $120 each, and any further expenses were met out of their own pockets.

BOWLS CHAMPIONS 100 PER CENT.

BRILLIANT "DOUBLE" OVER CIVIL SERVANTS

TWO RINKS RECORD SEVENS

THE Kowloon Bowling Green Club, 1933 champions, retained their 100 per cent. leadership of the premier division of the Lawn Bowls League yesterday, recording a decisive home victory over the Civil Service, last year's runners-up, by 65 shots to 38.

The Craigengower C.C. "B" team, following several surprising victories during their debut in the Senior League, received their first serious setback yesterday at the hands of the Club de Recreio, who won by a margin of 61 shots to 45.

AFTER FOUR VICTORIES IN AS MANY MATCHES, THE CIVIL SERVICE LOST THEIR 100 PER CENT. RECORD IN THE JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP WHEN THEY WERE DEFEATED BY THE KOWLOON BOWLING GREEN BY 56 TO 51 SHOTS.

A. R. Dallah's rink (S. M. Rumjahn, A. H. Madar, the Inter-port cricketer, and M. Y. Adal) scored a 7 on the 16th head for the L.R.C. against T. W. Carr's K.C.C. rink at Kowloon to win by 29 shots to 22. W. McHardy's Police rink (W. Dall, S. R. Farlow and C. F. Alexander) also scored a 7 on the 11th head against J. J. Gregory's Football Club rink at Happy Valley to win by 25 shots to 15.

DILLY-DALLYING ROBS CHINESE OF WIN

CORD GIVES MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY IN GOAL

NO BORDERER PLAYERS IN F.A. COMBINATION

A CROWD APPROACHING RECORD DIMENSIONS WITNESSED THE DEFEAT OF THE CHINESE OLYMPIC FOOTBALL ELEVEN, WHO CARRIED ALL BEFORE THEM IN THE RECENT OLYMPIC GAMES AT MANILA, BY THE HONG KONG FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION BY THREE CLEAR GOALS, AFTER BEING LED BY A GOAL AT THE INTERVAL ON THE CLUB GROUND YESTERDAY.

Though superior in speed, footwork and combination, the Chinese lost because they dilly-dallied with their many opportunities.

Cord gave a magnificent display of goal-keeping, being outstanding for exceedingly well-judged clearances.

There was only one change in the Chinese team, Tam Kong Pak being replaced by Wong Mee Shun at inside-right. Four changes, however, were made in the Association team. Hill, Thomson, West and Elms replacing Mullane, Morrison, Jones and Podmore, respectively.

The Chinese started with great confidence, but were surprised when B. Gosano made an excellent run down the wing and centred beautifully. Wong Wing, the Chinese goal-keeper, attempted to punch the ball clear, but Malpas got his head to the ball first, and the Association were a goal in the lead.

The Chinese then attacked strongly, but play was confined to their half until half-time.

Over-eagerness gave rise to bad feelings among the players.

Chinese Foot-Work Superior

Both teams played a good fast game, the Chinese forwards being far superior with their brilliant foot-work, but Hill and A. V. Gosano were very steady, and broke up attack after attack.

At the commencement of the second half the Chinese pressed, and Cord was forced to give of his best to save his charge. Wong Mee Shun and Tam Kong Pak were the most dangerous Chinese forwards in the goal-mouth, but Cord's remarkable anticipation frustrated their many attempts.

A. V. Gosano was primarily responsible for the second goal when, with a good length kick, he placed the ball at the feet of Thomson, who beat Leung Wing Chui before passing to E. Strange who ran through to score with a rasping drive.

Play now became exciting, the Chinese launching attack after attack and giving Cord a gruelling test. The Association halves and full-backs, however, played well in defence.

Gosano's Fine Goal

In the latter stages of the game B. Gosano received the ball from Robertson, and, after a magnificent run down the wing, during the course of which he beat Leo Kwok-wai and Lau Mau, he sent in a long range shot that completely deceived Wong Wing.

Both teams played well, and the team-work was outstanding. For the Chinese forwards Tso Kwai-sing and Fung King-cheung were outstanding with their well-timed passes and fast play.

Leung Wing-chui was the better of the half-backs, but Wong Wing was decidedly off form.

It was learned after the game that Wong had been suffering from

WALLACE AND LAWSON LITTLE IN GOLF FINAL

30,000 See Dunlap Defeated.

POLICE PROTECTION FOR SCOT

(Final on Page 1)

London, Yesterday.

James Wallace, of Troon, the 32-year-old Glasgow ship-plater and 1931 runner-up in the Scottish Championship, will meet Lawson Little, American Walker Cup player from San Francisco, in the final of the British Amateur Golf Championship over 36 holes at Prestwick to-day.

There were no surprising results in the quarter finals which resulted as follows:—

Wallace (Troon) beat Francis (Sunningdale) 3 and 2.
Dunlap (America) beat Walker (Delaware Forest) 3 and 1.
Lawson Little (America) beat Bourne (Sunningdale) 4 and 2.
Garnett (Addington) beat Neal (Moor Park) 1 up.

The semi-finals resulted as follows:—

Wallace beat Dunlap 2 and 1.

Lawson Little beat Garnett on 19th.

A crowd of 3,000 saw Wallace play marvellous golf to beat Dunlap, American amateur champion, by 2 and 1.

Wallace needed Police protection when the crowd surged round him after his most thrilling win.

Dunlap led one up at the ninth, having taken 35 to Wallace's 36 strokes. Wallace led for the first time at the 14th.

DING DONG STRUGGLE

The other semi-final produced a ding dong struggle in which Lawson Little and Garnett, the wealthy Londoner who eliminated Jack Goodman, were all square at the ninth with 37 strokes each.

Little was dormant one and won on the 19th, Garnett missing a two-foot putt.

The American had booked his passage by the Cunarder leaving Liverpool this morning, but the liner has postponed sailing for 10 hours.—Reuter.

The Australians were held to a draw by Hampshire at Southampton yesterday. Requiring 157 to win, the tourists scored 10 for the loss of one wicket before the game was abandoned as a draw.

The Australians lost their two remaining wickets yesterday morning for the addition of five runs, Chipperfield being undefeated with 116 to his credit.

Baring, the amateur fast bowler who dismissed Woodfull, Brown and Bradman for 6 runs and who also secured McCabe's wicket on Thursday, concluded the innings with 5 for 121.

A sterling innings by Arnold, who carried his bat through the innings for 109, enabled Lionel Tennyson to declare at 169 for 7 with little chance of defeat. Arnold, who was a contender for England's No. 2 batsman against the West Indies last year, keeps fit in the winter by playing soccer.

Scores as cabled by Reuter were: Hampshire: 420 (Mead 139, Lowndes 150, Lord Tennyson 58, S. J. McCabe 4 for 79, Fleetwood 3 for 123).

Australians: 433 (S. J. McCabe 79, L. Darling 96, A. Chipperfield 116 not out, W. M. Woodfull 2, W. Brown 0, D. G. Bradman 0, A. E. G. Baring 5 for 121).

The Australians have beaten Worcester, Cambridge University, Essex, and Oxford University, and have drawn with Leicester, the M.C.C. and Hampshire in the course of their seven matches to date. They are now engaged against Middlesex at Lord's and on June 6 they will encounter England in the first Test match at Trent Bridge, Larwood's home ground.

THE MEN WHO MADE AMERICA

Humble Names Become Household Words Romance Of Vast Fortunes

(By R. H. BRUCE LOCKHART.)

New York. In America to-day, Big Business is on the defensive, and Wall Street and the other pill-boxes of speculation are the objects of an intensive bombardment.

Most of the ammunition comes from a book called "The Robber Barons," by Matthew Josephson. In spite of its title it is a serious book written in the historical manner and copiously documented. It supplies high explosive to the guns of the pro-Roosevelt Press.

What stands out most clearly in the book is the influence of the Civil War on the industrial development of the United States. It gave the filip and the opportunity to that small band of energetic young men whose names to-day are household words in the history of millionaires.

When Lincoln issued his first call for volunteers in 1861, Jay Gould, Jim Fisk, J. Pierpont-Morgan, Philip Armour, Andrew Carnegie, James Hill and John Rockefeller, were in their early twenties. Collis Huntington and Leland Stanford, the Californian pioneers, were over thirty. Jay Cooke was not yet forty. Daniel Drew, the first great bear, and Cornelius Vanderbilt were older.

All except Morgan, who was the son of a banker, were of humble origin. All except Fisk, who was subsequently killed by his mistress's lover, were discreet, sober, well-controlled young men, whose strongest lust was their pecuniary appetite. All saw the opportunity to be won from the war and all stayed at home.

Their attitude is defined in a letter sent by Judge Mellon to a son who wished to enlist:

"I had hoped that my boy was going to make a smart, intelligent business man and was not such a goose as to be seduced from duty by the declamations of uncombed speeches. It is only greenhorns who enlist.... In time you will come to understand that a man may be a patriot without risking his own life. There are plenty of other lives less valuable or others ready to serve."

The young men understood. Behind the lines there were lucrative tasks to be done. Banks had to raise a million dollars a day for the war. Jay Cooke became the Government's sole concessionaire for loans.

Roads To Fortune Food and produce had to be multiplied. In Cleveland the young merchant Rockefeller prospered under the sun of rising prices for provisions. In Philadelphia butcher Widener did a roaring trade in meat. From Chicago Philip Armour sent forth salted pork to the Union armies — and, when he scented peace, sold his pork short, thus ruining many of his competitors.

The new lands of the West had to be opened up quickly with railroads for productive purposes. Jay Gould, Fish, Huntington, Daniel Drew and Leland Stanford, saw to the railroads.

The youthful Morgan had a flutter in munitions. One of his first deals was a loan to a dealer who bought 500 defective rifles discarded by the Washington Government and resold them the next day at a profit of nearly 100,000 dollars to one of the Army Commanders. Commodore Vanderbilt provided the troop ships.

As Daniel Drew said, why should not this great rebellion once more be "a grand time for brokers and private banking?"

Drew, incidentally, is credited with the invention of "watched stock." He began life as a drover, kept his cattle thirsty with salted food on the journey, and then let them drink their fill just before they arrived at the market.

During the seven fat years which followed the Civil War the American public was to learn more than it wanted about "watered" stock. The building of the transcontinental railways provided the opportunity. The technique of the operation, perfected by Gould, was as follows:

"Buy up two or more bad roads, put them together, give the united roads a new name, call it a good, prosperous line, get a number of people to believe all this, make large issues of bonds, and then sell out at a huge profit. It was the recognised code of the times. There were no rules and no morals about big business. One went into the ring with gloves off, and fair-play, let alone mercy, was neither sought nor given. Each man strove to establish a monopoly in his own particular enterprise, and the strife among the big men was interminable.

Each had his own tame newspaper, his own tame judge, and his own tame Senator and Congressman. These methods cost money — and big money. But the price paid was infinitesimal compared with the rewards.

The First Slump The seven fat years were followed by seven lean years, and in the winter of 1873-1874 there was a collapse comparable with the collapse of 1929.

The wreckage of big fortunes was considerable. Jay Cooke, the banker, went down in the crash and made way for the complete ascendancy of Morgan. Drew, Gould's partner in the long struggle against Cornelius Vanderbilt over the Erie Railway, had gone down a year or two before — ambushed and sniped by Gould himself in a brilliantly executed "corner."

It was a system which made the rich richer and the poor poorer, and on the ruins of the slump the men who had preserved their capital consolidated their position. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who died in 1877, two years before the next brilliant period of recovery, left $4,000,000.

In these bad times there were mutterings among the public. In particular Gould, who began his career by stealing a discreditable march on his first employer, had to be guarded and lived in a bomb-proof office surrounded by an army of private detectives.

But when prosperity returned the grumbling and the threats vanished, and the millionaires came into their own again. They were the type the average citizen admired.

Their attitude to Labour was callous. Labour had no rights. Anyone who questioned the prerogative of a free American employer was labelled as a Communist.

It was the same with regard to the Law and the Government: "What do I care about the Law?" said Cornelius Vanderbilt. "Haven't I got the power?"

Yet outside this merciless financial carnage these figures were sober, Godfearing men, who had no inferiority complex and no sense of wrong-doing. Perhaps they were too busy to think. They

WISE & OTHERWISE

On and On
Gibbs: "My wife always has the last word."
Green: "You're lucky. Mine never gets to it."

Quite Naturally

A correspondent remarks that the two jobbing gardeners in his district have joined forces. Sleeping partners, of course.

In Other Words

"Road excavations slow down traffic," announces a headline. The crawl of the opened road?

Motoring Advice

"I intend to take up motoring," writes a correspondent. "Please give me directions for driving a car." Certainly; North, South, East and West.

Which?

An author declares that a motorist should always put his wife before his car. As a buffer or a mascot?

More to Her Taste

Green: "Is your wife fond of listening in?"
White: "She prefers speaking out."

Trouble Suspected

The Boss (to chief cashier): "I wish you wouldn't look so worried. Jones, you've put us to the expense of having the auditors in for nothing at all."

We read that a retired chef who took over the management of a Chicago workers' club ruled the place. It isn't altogether surprising that he made a hash of the joint.

The Girl (as angry noises from downstairs disturb the elopement): "Quick! That's father! Start whistling something and pretend you're the window-cleaner working overtime!"

Couldn't Say

"Mamma, when the fire goes out where does it go?"
"My dear boy, I don't know. You might just as well ask me where your father goes when he goes out."

That's Good

As a result of an accident a policeman has sold his two-seater car. Another copper off petrol.

Not so Soft as They Look

Warning to young men—remember many a peach has a heart of stone.

Squashed

The meeting had been rather stormy.

"Oh, do try to talk a little common sense," shouted one of the opposition.

"That would be taking an unfair advantage of you," replied the speaker, quietly.

SIMPLER

Rain has been produced by firing into clouds from airplanes. Another way is to wash the car.

Athletics

At a fete Mrs. Armstrong won the rolling-pin throwing contest. She threw the pin a distance of ninety-seven feet. Mr. Armstrong won the hundred yards sprint for men.

BOASTER

The flourishing wireless dealer who declared that he had never had a set back.

A motorist fined for embracing his passenger explained that he was learning to drive. But he should have known that wasn't the right clutch.

MARCUS SHOW
COMING

70 In The Troupe For Queen's Theatre.

BOX OFFICE RECORDS BROKEN
IN TOKYO AND SHANGHAI

Theatregoers in London, New York, Chicago, San Francisco,
Tokyo, Shanghai—and doubtless Hong Kong, differ little in their reactions. "To use the trite, but apt,
adage of the professional showman,
"give them what they want and they'll buy tickets." As proof there is the recent experience of the Marcus Show which is scheduled to open a short season at Queen's Theatre, commencing Sunday, June 10.

For a quarter of a century the Marcus Show has been a standard attraction in America. When Mr.
A. B. Marcus, proprietor and managing director, arranged with Mr.
Charles Hugo, well-known in the Far East as director of various amusement enterprises, for a round-the-world tour of the 70-person troupe, fellow-producers along Broadway declared that amusement lovers on the other side of the earth would not appreciate the American style of girl-song-and-dance entertainment,
and as a consequence box office
apathy would result. Even if they did, said the wisacres, the cost of operating a troupe of that size would spell financial ruin.

Fortified by the advice of Mr.
Hugo, who is familiar with the tastes of folks west of the International Date Line, Mr. Marcus, however, embarked on the venture and refused to cut the personnel of his organisation.

In Tokyo and Shanghai, the two cities in the Orient thus far visited,
the public did precisely what it had been doing for many seasons in Cleveland and New Orleans and Los Angeles and New York. Attendance records were established in both cities.

Three different and distinct extravaganzas, "La Vie Parée," "Broadway Merry Go-Round" and "Okay," each running some two and three quarter hours and each produced in thirty or more diverse and colourful scenes, will be offered during the short stay in Hong Kong.

Two complete performances will be given daily, matinees at 5.15 and night at 9.15. Owing to the length of the stage production no pictures
will be shown.

THE MEN WHO MADE AMERICA.

built themselves palaces and bought are treasures.

An Amazing Age
But it was to the Church, above
all, that the gifts of the millionaires accrued. For these men were all church-goers. Was it the attendance of guilty conscience?
I do not think so. The attitude was perhaps typified by John D.
Rockefeller's "God gave me the money." He believed it, as,
doubtless, some of the others also believed it, and some of the vast profits were given back.

Even Drew was a church-goer.
His best story was about the church.
On one occasion, he loved to say, he went into a Methodist Church while a revival was in progress and listened to a convert telling how sinful he had been, lying, cheating, and robbing men of their money in Wall Street. "Who is he?" asked Drew, now very interested, of his neighbour.

"That's Daniel Drew" was the reply.

It was an amazing age, and the men who created it are not perhaps to be judged by the standards of to-day. Nor is their achievement to be belittled. For better or worse they have made America
what she is, and the fierceness of their competitive spirit has accelerated the rate of progress and development.

The natural consequence of their fratricidal struggle was the consolidation of the big business of the country in the hands of giant trusts controlled by a handful of multimillionaires. In 1902
there was another wave of public protest. That astute politician, Theodore Roosevelt, put himself at the head of it, but, being himself thoroughly anti-Socialist, he tempered his reforms and ended by conciliating the great industrialists.

His efforts to curb the power of the Trusts suggest an interesting parallel to the present situation.
Once again a great war has given an unprecedented fillip to American prosperity. Once again the seven fat years have been followed by leanness. Once again there is an ominous rumble of discontent and once again a Roosevelt, who is a patrician and not a Socialist, is trying to ride on the wave of public resentment and to tilt a lance at the knights of big finance.

The outcome is not easy to predict. To-day there are easier methods of arousing the social conscience of the nation. America is no longer a pioneer country.
Her waste places have been filled
in. There is a revolution of ideas which is now and even alarming.
Yet the doubt remains whether the fierce individual spirit which made America has totally disappeared. It has been modified,
and probably will remain modified.
But if it has vanished altogether,
then not only America's greatest characteristic, but human nature
itself, will have changed.

'ASPRO' SAFEGUARD YOUR HEART & HEALTH

FALSE ECONOMY with medicine purchasing is a delusion. It is risky, unsafe, perilous and critical. In the interests of health it is essential to shun
impure acetyl salicylic acid preparations.
As is well known to medical science, free salicylic acid has an adverse effect on the heart—causes digestive troubles—and other disorders. 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it. It is pure, safe, sure and gives certain relief to sufferers and conforms with the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the medical profession. Read the fifteen principal uses of 'ASPRO' listed below. The reason why such definite claims are made for 'ASPRO' is because 'ASPRO' is both a powerful germicide and an internal antiseptic, and, after ingestion in the system, it is anti-pyretic, anti-periodic, anti-fermentative, antiseptic and a solvent of Uric Acid. Don't endanger your health with impure medicines.

'ASPRO' does not harm the heart nor have any injurious after-effects. Therefore avoid risk by insisting on 'ASPRO'.

For Over 15 Years—The World's Master Medicine.

5 MINUTES

There is nothing indefinite about
'ASPRO.' Its service is QUICK—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from
'ASPRO,' as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens nor drugs.

You leave home as "fit as a fiddle"
but never know the moment when fate will prove unkind in the form of a headache—neuralgia or nerve pain, or maybe it will be a rheumatic attack. The slightest derangement of your nervous system may make you feel "nervy" or irritable. The sight of an accident may upset you for the day. In crowds germ contamination may place you in the quick grip of a cold or influenza. The best protection for such emergency is to make certain that you put a few 'ASPRO'
Tablets in your pocket or purse
BEFORE YOU LEAVE HOME.

Sweeps.

It is the general experience that the older a man grows—unless he belongs to the very rare type that develops into a miser—the more tolerant he becomes of the vagaries of human nature, especially in money matters. In the twenties we have read homilies along the familiar lines traced for us by the great Dr. Smiles, showing us so clearly what we already know, that "it is the first hundred pounds that counts." That first hundred pounds! We start a Savings Bank account. We have tiffin at a cheap restaurant. We walk home instead of taking a bus; or take a bus instead of a taxi. Then we buy some shares that we are assured have "abundant scope for appreciation" and we are left to "nurture the baby." We start again, strongly convinced of the virtue of "gut-edged." Then comes a wedding, and the absolutely sweetest baby on Earth, and we start again. Each start is marked by a decrease of enthusiasm. We are beginning to feel that the harsh and commonplace world does not appreciate our true value; that it really owes us something; something really worthy, something in cash, something genuinely handsome. The Calcutta or Irish sweep would be acceptable, — on account. We buy a ticket. Perhaps the Tung Wah, or the Juling Stakes Jockey Club Sweep? The next stage is that we are delighted to hear that Happy Valley has reduced the tickets to one-dollar. At that price we can really afford to try our luck. In any case we have had the chance, as Dr. Johnson told the bidders for Mrs. Thrale's Brewery, of winning for a paltry contribution of filthy lucre "wealth beyond the dreams of avarice." Not, of course, beyond our own dreams; far otherwise. Though we would not plead guilty to the vice of avarice.

In nothing have the English-speaking countries shown a greater failure to understand human nature than in their dealings with betting and gambling and lotteries. What farcical leading cases on the definition of a "public place"! If a benevolent old gentleman in a white hat pitched a camp stool on a brick-strewn vacant lot and offered the odds in shilling bets, he was on private land. But if he put up a scarlet umbrella marked in white letters "the old firm" he made it a "public place," and paid the penalty. What may be done in a club becomes a crime if it is done at a street corner. What may be legal if done by a signature on a printed form, is quite wrong if tickets are issued. And the element of skill. The easy crossword with the condition that in case of many successful solutions being sent in the prize shall be allotted to that which is first opened. The skill lies in being the first to be opened!

The reason why the old story of Cinderella is so popular is that the charming young lady did nothing but sit in a kitchen till the fairy godmother arrived. We all feel qualified to receive the dear old lady, and would we not be more careful to be home by midnight? We are willing to pay our insurance premium and to run a savings bank account; but what we really want is something sudden, unexpected, unearned and undeserved. Nobody ruins himself with sweepstakes as men do sometimes by backing their skill at card games, or picking winners. We know we are buying a mere chance, and we do not grudge congratulations to the winners. The lucky syndicate of five that won the Tung Wah Sweep did well for themselves, and it will be someone else's turn next time. Incidentally they, and others not so fortunate, contributed thirty-eight thousand dollars to a very deserving charity and twenty thousand to the Colonial Treasurer.

A quaint reflection is that even preposterous deductions still leave the odds so dazzling that they do little or nothing to deter subscribers. England has sent over to Ireland for the Hospital Sweep an amount equal to all that Mr. Thomas and the Chancellor of the Exchequer have collected in the special duties that have made so much ill feeling. So far Mr. De Valera has been sitting pretty. A new law is being passed to regulate remittances by post.

Another reflection is that if we had all won at Happy Valley we should have been able to go on buying tickets at five dollars. As things are, the reduction to one dollar is very popular.

YEAR WITH TWO EASTERS.

Unique Anniversary
In Germany.

Berlin.
This is the 350th anniversary of the year when Germany had two Easters. An unique monument at Lauterbach (Saxony), called the Osteraeule (Easter pillar), commemorates the fact.

The Gregorian calendar was introduced in 1584, when 20 days were dropped out of 10 starting February 24, and 10 in the following October.

Roman Catholics celebrated Easter according to the new calendar but the Protestants, refusing to recognise the authority of the Pope, celebrated the feast according to the Julian calendar, 10 days later. —Router.

PASSION PLAY OPENS THIS MORNING 300-YEAR-OLD TRADITION THUS BROKEN

TERCENTENARY SEASON

A tradition of 300 years will be broken to-day with the first performance of the Tercentenary Season of the Oberammergau Passion Play. Since its inception the Passion Play has been played once only in every 10 years, but as a special celebration the people of this picturesque Bavarian mountain village have decided to produce the play on the 300th anniversary of its inception.

In all there will be 28 performances of the play this year, the dates are: to-day, June 3, 11, 17, 25; July 1, 4, 8, 11, 15, 18, 22, 25, 29; August 1, 5, 8, 12, 15, 19, 22, 26, 29 September 3, 5, 10, 12 and 16.

The play, which is produced and acted entirely by members of this small village community, is an all-day performance. Starting at 8 a.m. it proceeds until noon. After a break it continues from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m.

The open-air stage has a small enclosed portion in the centre at the back in which the indoor scenes are acted, and in which the tableaux from the Old Testament which precede each act are staged. The other portions of the play take place out of doors.

The dialogue of the play is entirely in German, and spectators are supplied with books containing a translation and an explanation of what is proceeding.

Chequered History

The Passion Play of Oberammergau has had a long and chequered history. It was played for the first time in 1634 in consequence of a vow made by the villagers.

COLLECTS THINGS FROM GRAVES.

Belgian's Strange
Hobby.

Paris.

A man whose strange passion was collecting funeral urns, wreaths, crucifixes and other objects to be found in cemeteries, has been arrested here.

He is a Belgian named Lequeux. The police detained him just as he was leaving Montmartre Cemetery carrying two china vases which he had taken his fancy on a tomb.

He was sentenced to three months imprisonment and five years local banishment.—Router.

BOOM IN MECCA PILGRIMS.

Egyptian Government Gives Facilities.

Alexandria.

Twice as many pilgrims are making the journey from Egypt to Mecca this year compared with last season. More than 3,700 have already bought tickets for the journey.

This large increase is largely attributed to special facilities granted by the Egyptian Government.

These include the export of £150,000 worth of gold from Egypt to the Hedjaz to facilitate travel for the pilgrims, and the provision of a special fleet of ships to transport pilgrims to Arabia.—Router.

2,000-YEAR-OLD BODY FOUND.

Bosphorus Merchant's Tomb Unearthed.

Korch, Crimea.

The skeleton of a child, aged 7, is among a number of objects contained in a stone sarcophagus which has been discovered in a 2,000-year-old tomb in the district of Korch.

The tomb apparently belonged to a merchant of the Bosphorus Kingdom which flourished from the fifth to the first century B.C.

The objects discovered include seven painted earthenware figures of dancing girls, several goblets, and boxes encrusted with gems.—Router.

Melchior Breitsamer, who takes the part of Pontius Pilate, working with his father in the sawmill.

Three centuries ago death cast its shadow over the whole of Central Europe, whole communities were wiped out by the terrible plague which swept from country to country.

The people of this little mountain village took precautions against the plague—no stranger was allowed within the valley—but, in spite of this, one villager, Karl Schisler, who had been away, returned stricken with the dread disease.

As the result forty people died between the autumn of 1632 and July 1633. The elders of the village then made a solemn vow that they would "keep the Tragedy of the Passion every 10 years." Records show that from that hour no other person was stricken by the dread disease.

Since that year, without exception, every 10 years saw the play staged until 1920, when, owing to starvation in Germany, following the blockade, it was impossible for it to take place.

Village Threatened

In 1922, however, a performance was given which proved almost to be the ruin of the village. Many months are necessary for training and rehearsal, and in that year, owing to the depreciation of the mark, the villagers received little or nothing for their many months of work. Anton Lang, who in that year played the role of Christ, is said to have received something like 30/- for the time he gave to the play. Many visitors from England that year, however, made efforts to raise a subscription after they had returned home, and the actors were not left starving as they had anticipated.

In that year an offer was made for the film rights of the play from a large American company, but the villagers realised that to remove the play from its natural setting and atmosphere would spoil it. Repeated offers were made, and it was when the villagers were about to accept that the man who played St. Peter shaved his beard, thus making it impossible for him to perform, and the film was never made.

Nazi "Reforms"

The play is to be threatened again, not with extinction, but with alterations which will spoil the whole character of the performance. The Nazi Government have threatened to institute "reforms", insisting on a Nordic Christ, and replacing the Palestinian background with a Teutonic setting.

Judas, under the new scheme, will be a Jew, and the possibility of a section of the audience being paid to hiss him on every appearance is being considered.

These "reforms" will not affect the performances this year, but they are said to be almost certain to be enforced for the 1940 season.

Player's Illness

Alois Lang, who is to play the role of Christ this year, was very nearly prevented from taking his part when he was taken ill after being exposed to the cold and rain for some 20 minutes after hanging only by his arms from the Cross, during a rehearsal.

Summer Flowering Shrubs.

A stroll along almost any Forest path will reveal a number of shrubs with beautiful or interesting flowers. The following list is of a collection made on the evening of the 25th at Pokfulam.

Two members of the Myrtaceae are out in abundance namely Rhodomyrtus tomentosa the Rose Myrtle which we consider to be the commonest flowering shrub in the Colony. The flowers are pink, five petals and a multitude of stamens, diameter of open flower 1 1/2 to 2 inches. The other is the wild Guava, Psidium guajava, an American species which is thoroughly naturalised and very abundant in the Colony. The flowers have five white petals and numerous white stamens, diameter of flower 1 to 1 1/2 inches, the flower smells strongly of the scent which is characteristic of the ripe fruit of this shrub. The fruits of both these plants can be made into excellent jelly, not jam on account of the very many small seeds.

The Loganiaceae is represented by the Strychnine shrub Strychnos nuxvomica. We have on many occasions referred to the orange-like fruits containing the very poisonous seeds but have never in these notes described the flower. The flowers are in rather small trichotomous cymes, on short, lateral, leafy branches. Each flower has a tube about 1/6 in. long and five narrow petals each 1/6 or 1/8 inch in length; they are fragrant. Strychnos can be recognised by the leaves, in opposite pairs each with three three prominent veins. The family includes Gelsemium also very poisonous and Buddleia.

The Apocynaceae includes a number of beautiful flowering shrubs and climbers e.g. Melodinus, Cerbera, Vine, the Periwinkle, Nerium the Oleander and Strophanthus the Arrowpoison plant. The one in flower now is called Pottsia cantoniensis, it can be confused with no other shrub in the Colony. In the distance this woody climber appears like a Traveller's Joy but covered with pale pink instead of white flowers. Close examination shows that each branch is terminated by a narrow stalked, much branched, leafless inflorescence. The scores of flowers borne on each inflorescence are very small but owing to the vast numbers carried by one plant the general effect is very attractive; each flower is bright pink, a little brighter than coral pink, and possesses five petals. Diameter of flower 1/4 inch. The leaves are in opposite pairs, oval, shiny, 2 to 2 1/2 inches in length.

A shrub or tree now in flower called Cratogeomys polyanthum belongs to the Hypericaceae or St. John's Wort family. Most members of this family are herbs, this is an exception. The flowers are borne in groups of three on very short stalks. Flowers with 5 petals 1/4 to 3/8 inch in diameter pink or red; leaves opposite, oblong lanceolate. This tree is very abundant in the Colony, we saw it in flower in abundance on Cheung Chau Island a few days ago, and we are frequently asked its name.

There are two wild Mangosteens in the Colony of which Garcinia oblongifolia is the commoner. This tree is in full flower in many localities on the island. The flowers are unisexual and are borne in clusters the four cream coloured petals are fleshy and waxy; diameter of flower 3/4 inch. This species is closely related to G. cambogia from which the pigment kamboja is prepared. The smell of the flower is not very attractive. The fruits can be eaten but are not worth the effort.

The Custard Apple family, the Annonaceae, is fairly well represented in the Colony, the fruits are more conspicuous than the flowers of most of the species with one striking exception. Uvaria purpurea has large and most beautiful red flowers, scarlet lake at the tips of the six petals shading to orange at their point of attachment. Diameter of flower 3 to 3 1/2 inches. The flowers are partly hidden by the leaves and face downwards, the petals become more and more reflexed as the flower ages. This is one of the most striking flowers that can be seen in this Colony, unfortunately this species is not very common though U. microcarpa with smaller, yellow brown to red-brown flowers is abundant. We have found U. purpurea in the Philippines and also in Malaya where it is cultivated as an ornamental shrub but none of the flowers seen exceeded in beauty those found in Pokfulam last Friday.

FAREWELL TO MR MORRIS.

Chinese Merchants To Pay Tribute.

A farewell party in honour of Mr. Alfred Morris, Headmaster of King's College, who is retiring next month, will be given by Chinese merchants in the Colony, headed by Sir Shou-sun Chow, Kt., C.M.G., LL.D., on Tuesday at the Gloucester Building Restaurant.

Formerly Headmaster of the Sai Ying Pun School, Mr. Morris, for the past 16 years has devoted much of his time to charity work, more especially in connection with the St. John Ambulance Society of which he is Commissioner.

He has been instrumental in instituting free nursing centres in the Colony, organising stations and clinics both in Hong Kong and the New Territories and has given invaluable assistance to the sick and poor.

Mr. Morris celebrates his 60th birthday on June 18.

CHINESE WEDDING AT PENINSULA.

Cheung — Lee.

300 ATTEND RECEPTION

A pretty Chinese wedding was solemnised at the Peninsula Hotel yesterday when Miss Cheung Sung Tai was married to Mr. Lee Pak Kin, a former student of the Diocesan Boys' School. Mr. Loung Keang Chee officiated.

The duties of best man were performed by Mr. Chin Tsang Wing, and the bridesmaids were Miss Bella Mar and Miss Lee Guk Lun, sister to the bridegroom. Immediately after the marriage a reception was held in the "Green Room," at which over 300 guests were presented.

At 7.30 p.m. a large and distinguished gathering attended a ceremonial supper at the Kam Ling Hotel, West Point.

Personal Par

The names of Dr. Wong Tung-ming, M.B., Dr. William Lai Fook, M.B., B.S., Dr. Lau Man-hin, M.B., B.S., Dr. Cheng Wing-kwai, M.B., B.S., have been added to the Register of Medical Practitioners, dating from May 4.

"DESPICABLE CHARACTER" DENOUNCED

Magistrate's Scathing Remarks.

SORDID CASE ENDS

"I consider the defendant a youth of despicable character who has disgraced himself and his family. I am extremely sorry for the girl, but I cannot feel that she was entirely blameless in the matter," said Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday in discharging Chan Siu-tin, a young Chinese who was accused of having carnal knowledge of an 18-year old girl, Cheng Yuk-yip.

The case aroused considerable interest and a large number were present in Court to attend the hearing.

The accused, was charged under the Ordinance for the Protection of Women and Girls, with that on divers dates during the last two years, he did, by false pretences, namely representations of marriage as a kit fat or principal wife, procure carnal knowledge with Cheng Yuk-yip, whose age is given as 18.

In defending the charge, the accused claimed that he was already betrothed to a kit fat wife in the country, and that the position was fully known to the girl Cheng Yuk-yip, and she had consented to become a ping tsai wife, i.e. a wife enjoying equal rights with the kit fat, before intimacy commenced.

"In this case I am unable to find that the defendant did not contemplate a correct form of marriage with the complaint, that is correct under prevailing Chinese customs. I therefore find myself unable to convict. I must, however, point out that he is only clear upon the criminal count. I express no opinion as to what further action might take place."

RAZOR OPERATION ON HEN

Woman Saves Life Of Pet.

BUTTON HOOK AS PROBE

Hagerstown, Maryland. With a razor blade and a button hook, Mrs. Ida Manley performed an emergency operation on her pet hen and probably saved its life.

The bird became ill and would not eat, and Mrs. Manley, who had made a pet of it for five years, decided that something ought to be done.

Remembering that most chickens' troubles can be traced to their crops, she conducted an examination. There was a swelling in the crop and she decided upon an immediate operation.

With scarcely a flutter the hen lay on its back while Mrs. Manley opened its crop with the razor blade and used the button hook as a probe.

In a few seconds she had pulled out a rubber band which had prevented the hen from swallowing its food.

Then, with a needle and thread, she sewed up the incision and put the bird in comfortable quarters for its period of convalescence. It is now quite well again.—Router.

THE MISSING FIELD GLASSES

Wan Nam, 27 years, was fined $10, in default, 10 days' imprisonment, by Mr. Q. A. Macfarlane at the Central Police Court yesterday morning for being in unlawful possession of a pair of Government field glasses on Friday in Aberdeen Street.

Accused was arrested while attempting to pawn the glasses.

The New Tung Wah.

AS one wandered through the wide wards and along the verandahs of the new wing of the Tung Wah on Friday, with all the windows open and a fresh breeze blowing across, one felt that the removal up above the noisy streets and away from the smells of that crowded warren would alone do half the doctor's work. Leaning over the balustrade the whole process of disease and treatment could be taken in at glance. There were the markets with fruit and vegetables in neat piles and a foundation of shiny mud, the tenements crowded with people at the margin of economic survival, ignorant and careless of all the precautions that cost money.

One was not surprised to hear of the hundreds that daily present themselves for treatment, usually without any power to produce a fee; the miracle is that hereditary immunities or some other cause makes it possible to deal with the problem at all. What a comment on our intelligence it is that only at this late date are we realising that the medical problem is primarily one of prevention! And what a task it will be to carry it out properly! Difficult as it is to deal with hoary prejudices and suspicions we shall make no progress except by keeping the people of the crowded streets with us in sympathy and confidence; and that is where the Tung Wah and the other Chinese Hospitals and Dispensaries can do a great work.

Hungarian Artists. OUR indifference is impartially distributed. The small but accomplished community of Hungarians in Hong Kong has recently received a distinguished newcomer in Mr. Konya, who made his fame by his interior decorations in one or two of the big New York cinemas. Thence the millionaire company promoter, Mr. Schleisinger, took him out to South Africa to erect and adorn a chain of the biggest theatres in the big towns, Johannesburg, Pretoria, Durban, Bloemfontein, Lourenço-Marques, eleven in all. That Mr. Konya is up to date or a little in front of it, need hardly be said. He has come to explore whether there is a field for his work in Hong Kong. We wonder.

More Oriental Art. WHAT Hong Kong wants more than most things is some qualified man who can act as liaison officer between our poor enlightened Europeans and the various artistic and cultural movements that are going on unnoticed right under our eyes. Last week I noted the case of the show of Chinese Art of various periods at the Y.M.C.A. in Bridges St., and close on its heels came the show of Buddhist Art at Lee Gardens, which received only the most casual mention in a few lines in the daily press. The Chinese take for granted that we shall not be interested, and do not advertise; the European consequently hears nothing about it and does not go. Crowds of Chinese of all classes and ages went filing through the rooms last Sunday afternoon, and not a single European. Articles for sale were marked only in Chinese, and there was no interpreter of superintendent to explain anything.

Lo Han. EVERY temple has to have eighteen pictures, nine on each side, called the 18 Lo Han, showing various saints or hermits. These are frequently conventionalised like our own paintings of the twelve; but identity of subject leaves plenty of scope for characteristic differences of method and feeling. A very beautiful set in a portfolio was lent by Mr. To Hoi Chung, a famous artist who lives in Hong Kong unrecognised except by his own people. Why do we not know more of this accomplished fellow citizen?

Gwan-Yin. FROM this exhibition alone one could have purchased a valuable historical series of the stages of the very interesting cult of Gwan Yin. In India the idea of Infinite Mercy was embodied in a masculine type, of which there was a four-handed example here, as well as a four-headed Buddha in stone. The cult of a God of Mercy travelled through China to Japan, and the most famous masculine type is the beautiful wooden youth at Horiji, sitting pensive with crossed legs.

SCOTTISH YOUTH WITHOUT JOB

Police Endeavouring To Find Employment.

FORTNIGHT'S GRACE

Arrangements are being made by the Police for the deportation of George Lucas, a Scottish youth, who was detained in Police custody pending employment.

Lucas was stated to have come to the Colony from Japan by the s.s. President Coolidge on May 9 to catch a freighter to Manila. He was originally sent by the British Consul in Tokyo, but, having missed the boat he was sent by the President Coolidge. Upon his arrival here he found that the freighter had left port. He was found wandering in the Colony when detained.

Since his detention the Police have been endeavouring to secure work for the youth.

When Lucas appeared at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, Mr. E. W. Hamilton said that Detective-Sergeant Mottram had asked for 14 days to arrange work for the youth, and that if, in the meantime, work could be secured for him, he would let him stay in the Colony.

RUSSIAN DEPORTED TO SHANGHAI.

Entered Colony Without Legal Passport.

$5 FROM POOR BOX

Vasili Michael Ivanoff, a Russian subject, was yesterday deported to Shanghai by the s.s. Katori Maru.

Ivanoff with another Russian, Dmitri Vasilievich Kuznetsov, who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment, was found guilty last Saturday at the Central Magistracy before Mr. E. W. Hamilton of entering the Colony without a legal passport.

Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, warned Ivanoff that if he ever wished to return to the Colony, he must secure the permission of the Police first. Mr. Hamilton also ordered that $5 be taken from the poor-box for Ivanoff's expenses to the North.

UNION CHURCH Y.P.S. LAUNCH PICNIC.

Enjoyable Excursion To Junk Bay.

About 40 members of the Hong Kong Union Church Young Peoples Society held their first monthly launch picnic for the summer season yesterday afternoon.

A start was made at about 3 p.m. for Junk Bay, where a varied programme of beach and aquatic sports, including water polo, took place.

After a pleasant picnic tea the return journey was made, the party arriving at Queen's Pier at 8.45 p.m.

But when the Nestorians in the third century introduced the familiar type of Our Lady of Mercy she quickly supplanted the male god, and the gem of this exhibition was a small seated figure in clay coloured porcelain from the Hoi Yuen Temple in Fukien. Another exquisitely carved figure was in redwood; two and a half centuries old. The antiquarian would also note with added interest that Our Lady as 'Star of the Sea' survives in a type of which there are two or three examples. How far back in artistic tradition does the word 'Anadyomene' carry us?

Each A Link In The Cable

Mankind Bound By A Common Cause

What Empire Sunday Teaches

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by the local Army chaplain.)

On the strength of one link in the cable Dependeth the might of the chain. Who knows when thou mayest be tested, So live that thou bearest the strain.

THOSE of you who know your Kipling will remember these lines, and among all the inspiring verses he wrote, none is truer than this.

Not one of us, however, small or insignificant he may seem to be, in the world of wealth or labour, stands solitary or alone. He is a link of a chain of some kind or another.

There is first of all the chain of family—the strongest in the world. That is why a Father will often work his fingers to the bone to give his children a better start in life than he had himself. That is why the love of a Mother will follow her child to the ends of the earth. Though the seas may separate and the years divide, though that child may break her heart, or even stand on the scaffold, nothing can break the love that binds them, the links of the chain that make them one.

It is only one step from the chain of family, to the larger the human family. That chain is so strong that it encircles the earth. We are so closely bound up together that everything we do, or say, affects somebody else. We cannot live in splendid isolation. The clothes we wear passed through countless hands before we bought them in the shops; the food we eat tells the same story. One man in Manchester can ruin another in Mandalay. One Nation that chooses to go in off the deep end can wreck the peace of the world. Why?—simply because we as individuals are just links of a chain, and each nation is but a link in the chain that makes all one.

Regimental Honour

That is what we mean in the Army by talking about the Honour of a Regiment. You can't see it or touch it, yet it is very real. It is not given to the Commanding Officer, or kept locked up in a safe in the Orderly Room. It is given into the care and keeping of every Officer and man equally, and when one member disgraces himself, not only does he suffer, but all the others have to bear the ignominy of it too.

Each generation of soldiers, is just one link that stretches back to the dawn of their Regimental History. The Honours on the Colours are the links that bind all generations together. Each one as it comes and goes, is responsible for seeing that the link which they are forming is worthy of the chain to which they belong.

The same thing applies to every man who is working in some business, the roots of which are laid in the chain which is still being built, which is going on, when this generation has passed on, and another takes its place. Much may depend on the link which we to-day, in these times of strain and stress, are forging.

Who knows when thou mayest be tested?

Time and time again in human life and experience these times of testing come. They come to us as individuals; they come to Nations. In 1914 the British Empire was faced with the greatest test in its history. If the link had failed to stand the strain, the sun would have gone down for the last time in the twilight of our destiny. A few years ago we were faced with another test. The finances of Europe were tottering to their ruin—how could it be averted? The link held firm, though the strain was great, and to-day we are back again in the place we have ever held—and the chain is stronger than ever.

The Bond of Empire

They come to us as individuals. Sometimes they are long and trying, at others they come out of the blue, when we least expect them. We are called to an immediate decision, immediate action. It may be some dreadful loss or bereavement, or it may be some tremendous temptation that takes us off our guard. How are we going to meet these things when they come? The testing time of an Army is war. But they are prepared for it by training and discipline. And that is what we must have in daily life if we would be ready when the moment comes. If the foundations are laid well and truly a house can reasonably be expected to stand the fury of any storm. If our lives are grounded firm and deep on the solid rock of faith in the love and care, or the power and strength, of the God. Who loves us, then the storms of life can be met and weathered unafraid. The links will hold.

To-day is Empire Sunday, and automatically we are reminded of the great chain that encircles the globe—the Commonwealth of free Peoples who are bound together in common loyalty to one King and Emperor. Much has been done to try and smash the tie that binds us together, by that force that is all out to smash loyalty in every shape and form.

But here again the links will hold. There is one chain more that must be mentioned. We may remember our family ties, we may not forget our duty to the world-wide family of our neighbours, but somehow or another how often do we forget our duty towards God our Father, and to His Church on earth.

The Chain Of Centuries

Every one who has been baptised into the fellowship of that Church is a link of the chain that goes back across the span of the Christian centuries.

It has withstood that test of persecution. When civilization was almost swept out of existence, alone the Church stood firm, and kept alight the little spark of learning and light, from which in later years the scientists were able to rekindle their larger torches.

So often we hear people running it down. They tell the world that she has failed. In fact they have been saying that for several centuries, but still she survives, and grows. They say that she is not pulling her weight, as she should. If that is so it is simply because the links of the chain are not doing their share, and just because of that the chain is weakened, and not able to do and accomplish all she should.

So we are all links of a chain of some sort or another. Let us see to it that when the moment of testing comes, our lives have been such that we can bear the strain.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE BRITISH BUDGET

(To the Editor "Sunday Herald.") Sir,—The British Budget recently introduced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer reduces the standard rate of Income Tax by sixpence to 4/6d. in the pound.

The fact is of importance to those of your readers who receive dividends or Trust income from this country. The reduction will mean that although their net dividends will in most cases be increased, their repayment claims will be slightly smaller for the year ended 5th April, 1935.

The sums recoverable will still be substantial however, and should any of your readers have difficulty in obtaining their repayments, I shall be pleased to advise them if they will communicate with me at the address below.

(This expense in addition to the Weekly Indemnity and Hospital Expenses above)
No payment will be made for any sickness which arises within 21 days from the payment of the first premium.

In the Far East where income continues even during long periods of disability, the average person is more concerned with insurance which covers the expense incident to the disability than he is with a Policy providing a fixed weekly indemnity which frequently does not meet his needs. Any injury or sickness of a serious nature requires special hospital treatment—often a surgical operation. The expense is immediate and considerable. A Special Emergency Fund to take care of these burdensome bills is urgently needed.

The benefits payable under this insurance are designed to provide this emergency fund. The amounts payable are flexible—when the expense is heavy, the indemnity is large.

WEAK PLAYER LEAD

If I were a team selector in bowls, I should insist on a good second man, putting the weak man to lead. Many believe in the weak man playing second, but such placing is a great mistake. An outstanding No. 2 is the keystone of a successful rink, and where I have been able to influence the make-up of a rink, I have always insisted on my pet theory being carried out, and I have proved it profitable.—W. Miss Reynolds.EUROPEAN AND CHINESE PROGRAMME

An interesting and varied programme of European and Chinese items was given last night at the Subscription Concert, organised by the St. John Ambulance Brigade, in aid of the British Empire Cancer Campaign at King's College.

Among the European items a series of solo dances by Miss Azelen Reynolds was outstanding, her grace and poise being excellent. The rhythm of her movements brought continued applause from the large audience.

Mrs. Gardiner opened the programme with an excellent rendering of "Sally in our Alley," which was followed by a traditional Chinese Lantern Dance given by six girls from Fairlea School.

Mr. W. J. Geall was very amusing with a comic Spanish song and the old Music Hall favourite "Cabages Ca-beans and Carrots."

Corporal Tagney appealed to the Irish element of the audience with a saxophone solo, "Londonderry Air."

The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan, well-known to the Colony as a comedian, was at his best. His impersonation of an old-fashioned vicar caused great mirth.

Chinese Dance.

One of the most interesting items was the historical Chinese Dance by Queen Yu Ki, impersonated by Mr. Lum Siu Mui. This is a dance of the Han Dynasty, and was originally danced by the Queen to distract her husband, the Ruler Pih Wang, in his despair at his defeat by his enemies.

Mrs. Anderson Millar, the popular concert singer, gave several pleasing numbers, including the Waltz Song from "Tom Jones".

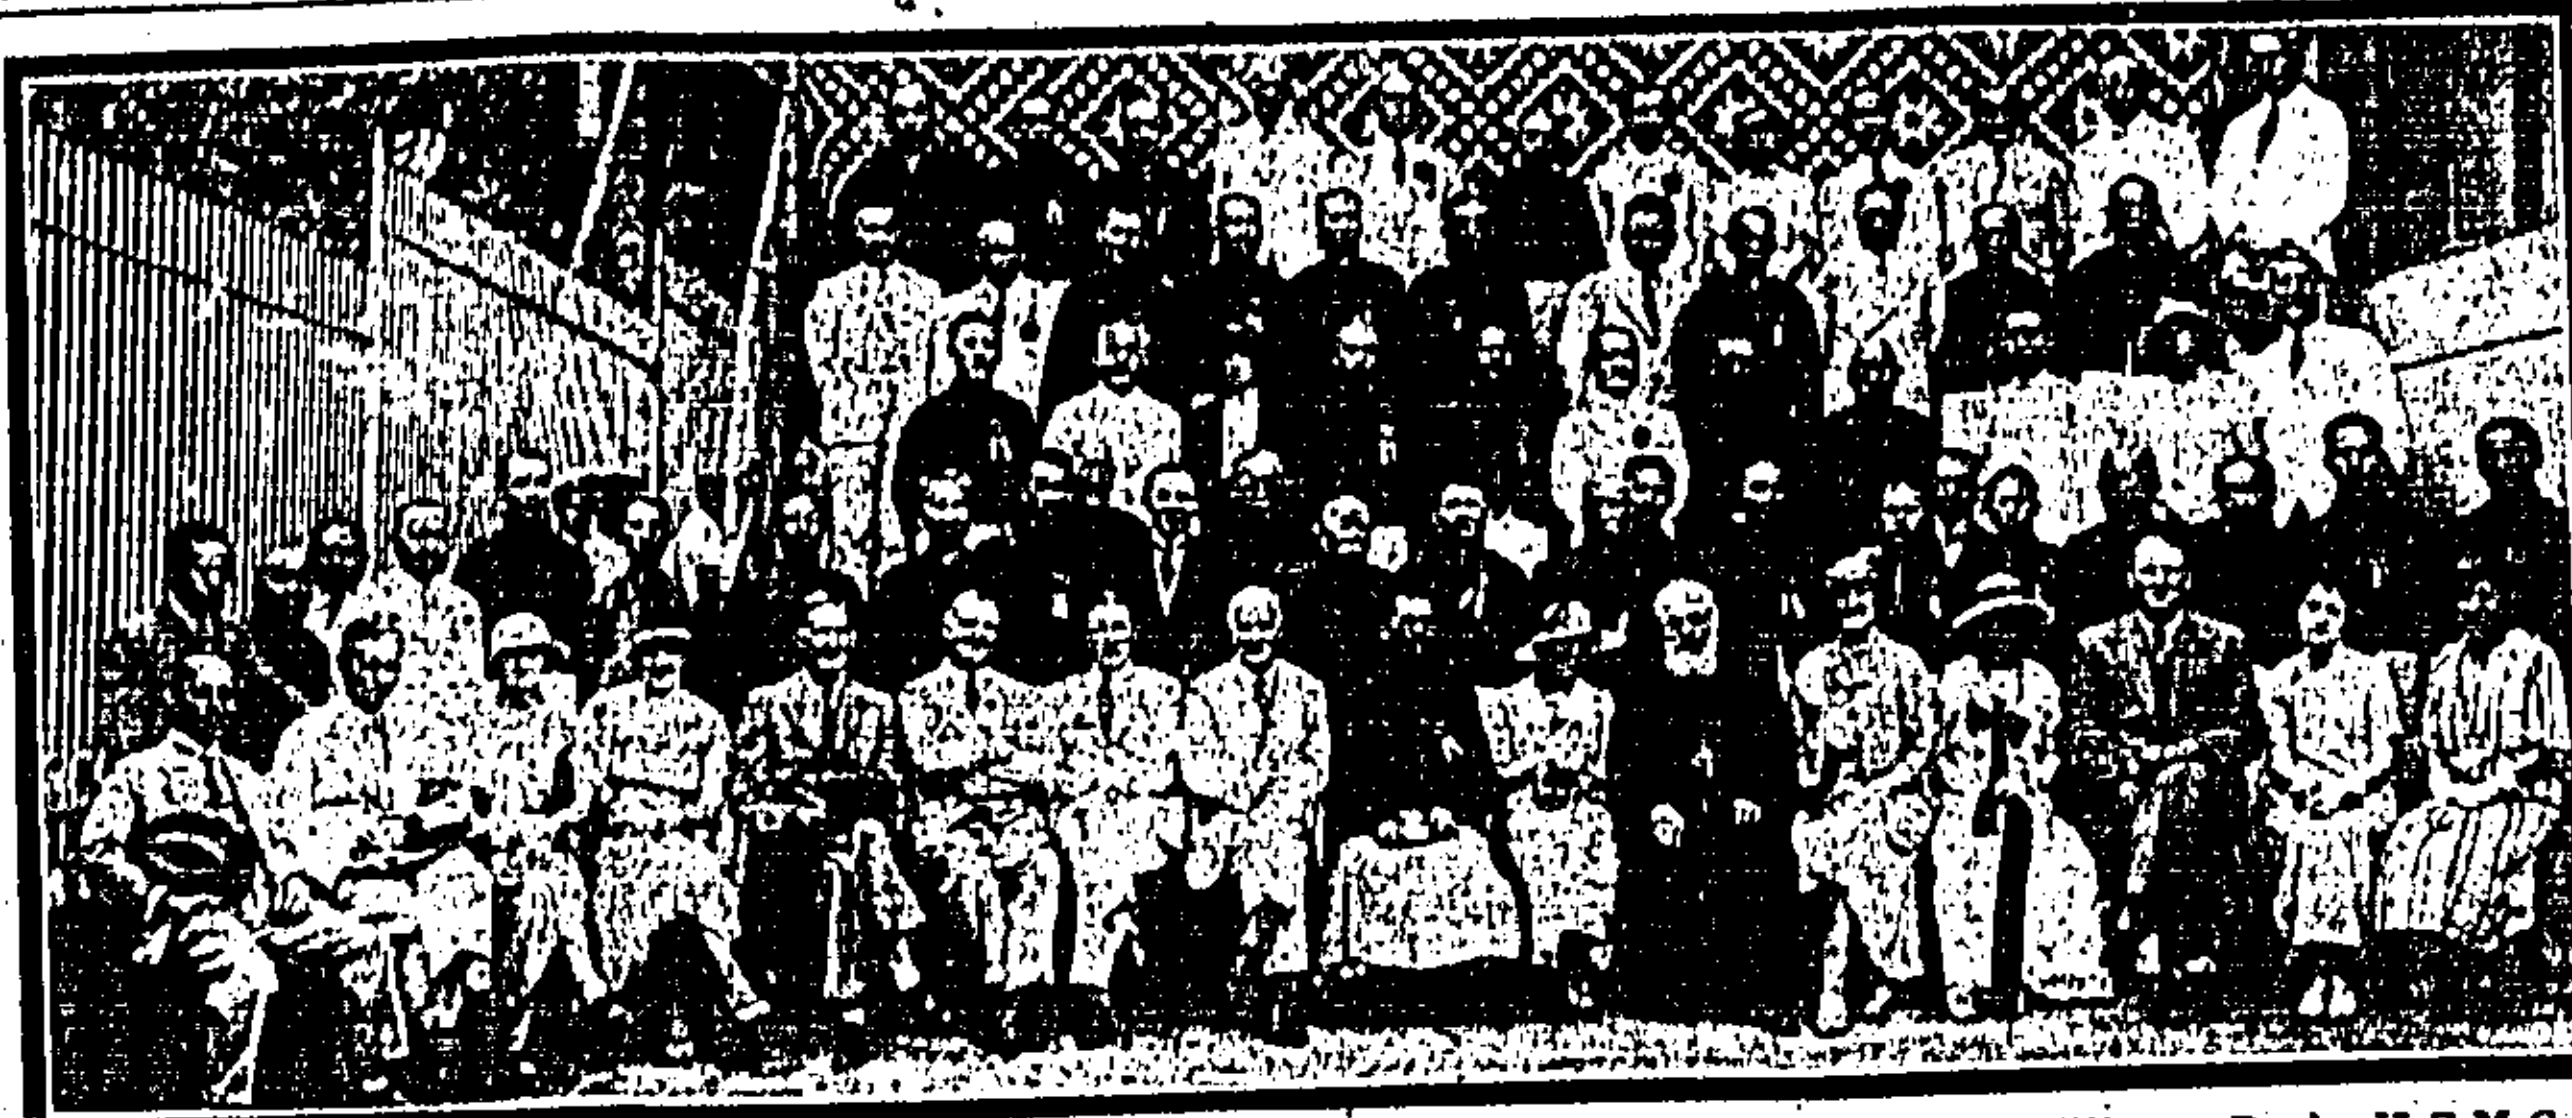

Other entertainers were Mr. Li Chor-chi, who gave two tenor solos, and who joined with Mrs. Anderson Millar, Mrs. Gardiner and Mr. Anderson Millar in the quartette, "A Regular Royal Queen".

Mr. Dick Barty, who entertained at the piano, Mr. Allan Hica who, to the skirling of the bagpipes gave a Highland fling, and Mr. Pan In-tat, who with several friends rendered Chinese instrumental music.

Lincoln's Orchestra Present. By kind permission of Lt.-Col. E. J. de C. Boys, M.C., and Officers of the 1st Bn. Lincolnshire Regiment, the orchestra of the Lincoln's played several well chosen selections.

Among those present were His Honour the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. McGregor, Mr. Justice Thomas, Chief Justice of Singapore, Commodore Frank Elliott and Mrs. Elliott.

Regrets at their inability to be present, and cheques towards the Funds were sent by His Excellency Group photograph taken at the opening of the new block of the Tung Wah Hospital, Po Yan Street, on Friday. The ceremony was largely attended by prominent European and Chinese residents, while thousands of Chinese assembled in the streets near the building to hear His Excellency's speech, which was broadcast.—(A. Fong).

In the men's section, Mr. E. Jones secured first prize with 159 points, while Mr. E. Boles won the second prize with 152 points. The consolation prize was won by Mr. G. Sparkes.

Into The Lion's Mouth

hundred yards or so he walked with the swiftness of an athlete but suddenly he turned his ankle in a rut and began to curse. A few moments later he scuffed his carefully polished shoe in a ridge of sand, so from then on he proceeded with a sort of nervous shuffle.

As he passed an Italian farmhouse, a mean looking dog came out and growled at him, and the only way he could get rid of it was by standing still and then going on very slowly. For a long distance he seemed to feel it creeping up behind him in the darkness. Between indignation and his hurrying pace he was getting very hot and mussy, so he took off his motor-coat and tried to find some easy position in which to carry it. From time to time he lighted paper matches, looked at his watch, and hastened on.

Half a mile from Allenville he turned into a paved highway with white fences. Now cars began to pass him frequently and, each time, Jim would look round expectantly, but at sight of this obvious solicitation the drivers would only put on additional speed and roar by. At last he had ceased even to turn when a glare of white light flared up at his heels and a car stopped beside him. From the darkness came Emily's faint voice:

"That you, Jim?"
Jim tossed his coat to the seat and climbed in. "Where are the keeyers?" he asked stiffly.

"Harold telephoned that he couldn't get out from town until the last train and May wasn't feeling very well."

Jim glanced furtively and saw that Emily was not wearing the fur neck-piece, but neither of them said anything more until they were in the main square of Allenville.

There Jim motioned to an old, brick building which loomed, ominously dark, behind a Civil War cannon and a low iron fence.

"That's it—just back of the soldier's monument."

"It—it doesn't look very lively," faltered Emily.

"I told you they would only take a few minutes," answered Jim.

Leaving Emily in the car he hurried up to the courthouse, but he knew that it was a useless gesture. Not a single light showed in the whole building and the ancient, locked doors merely rattled in his grasp.

On the opposite side of the square a single large window glared with light and Jim walked over to it. The place proved to be a combination cigar store and pool room, in charge of a fat young man with very sleekly parted blond hair. To establish a footing Jim bought a package of cigarettes, then casually asked:

"By the way, how did the caucus come out to-night?"

The young man stared at him blankly but pleasantly. "Brother, I wish I could tell you. Wait a minute. Perhaps I can find out."

Going to the end of the counter, he pulled back a dingy, green portiere, disclosing four men playing cards.

"Hey, Sheriff," he commanded. "Gentleman here wants to know about the caucus."

A heavy-set, middle-aged man, who looked like an old-time circus owner, tipped back his chair so that he could see round the curtain.

"Well, who about it?" he asked.

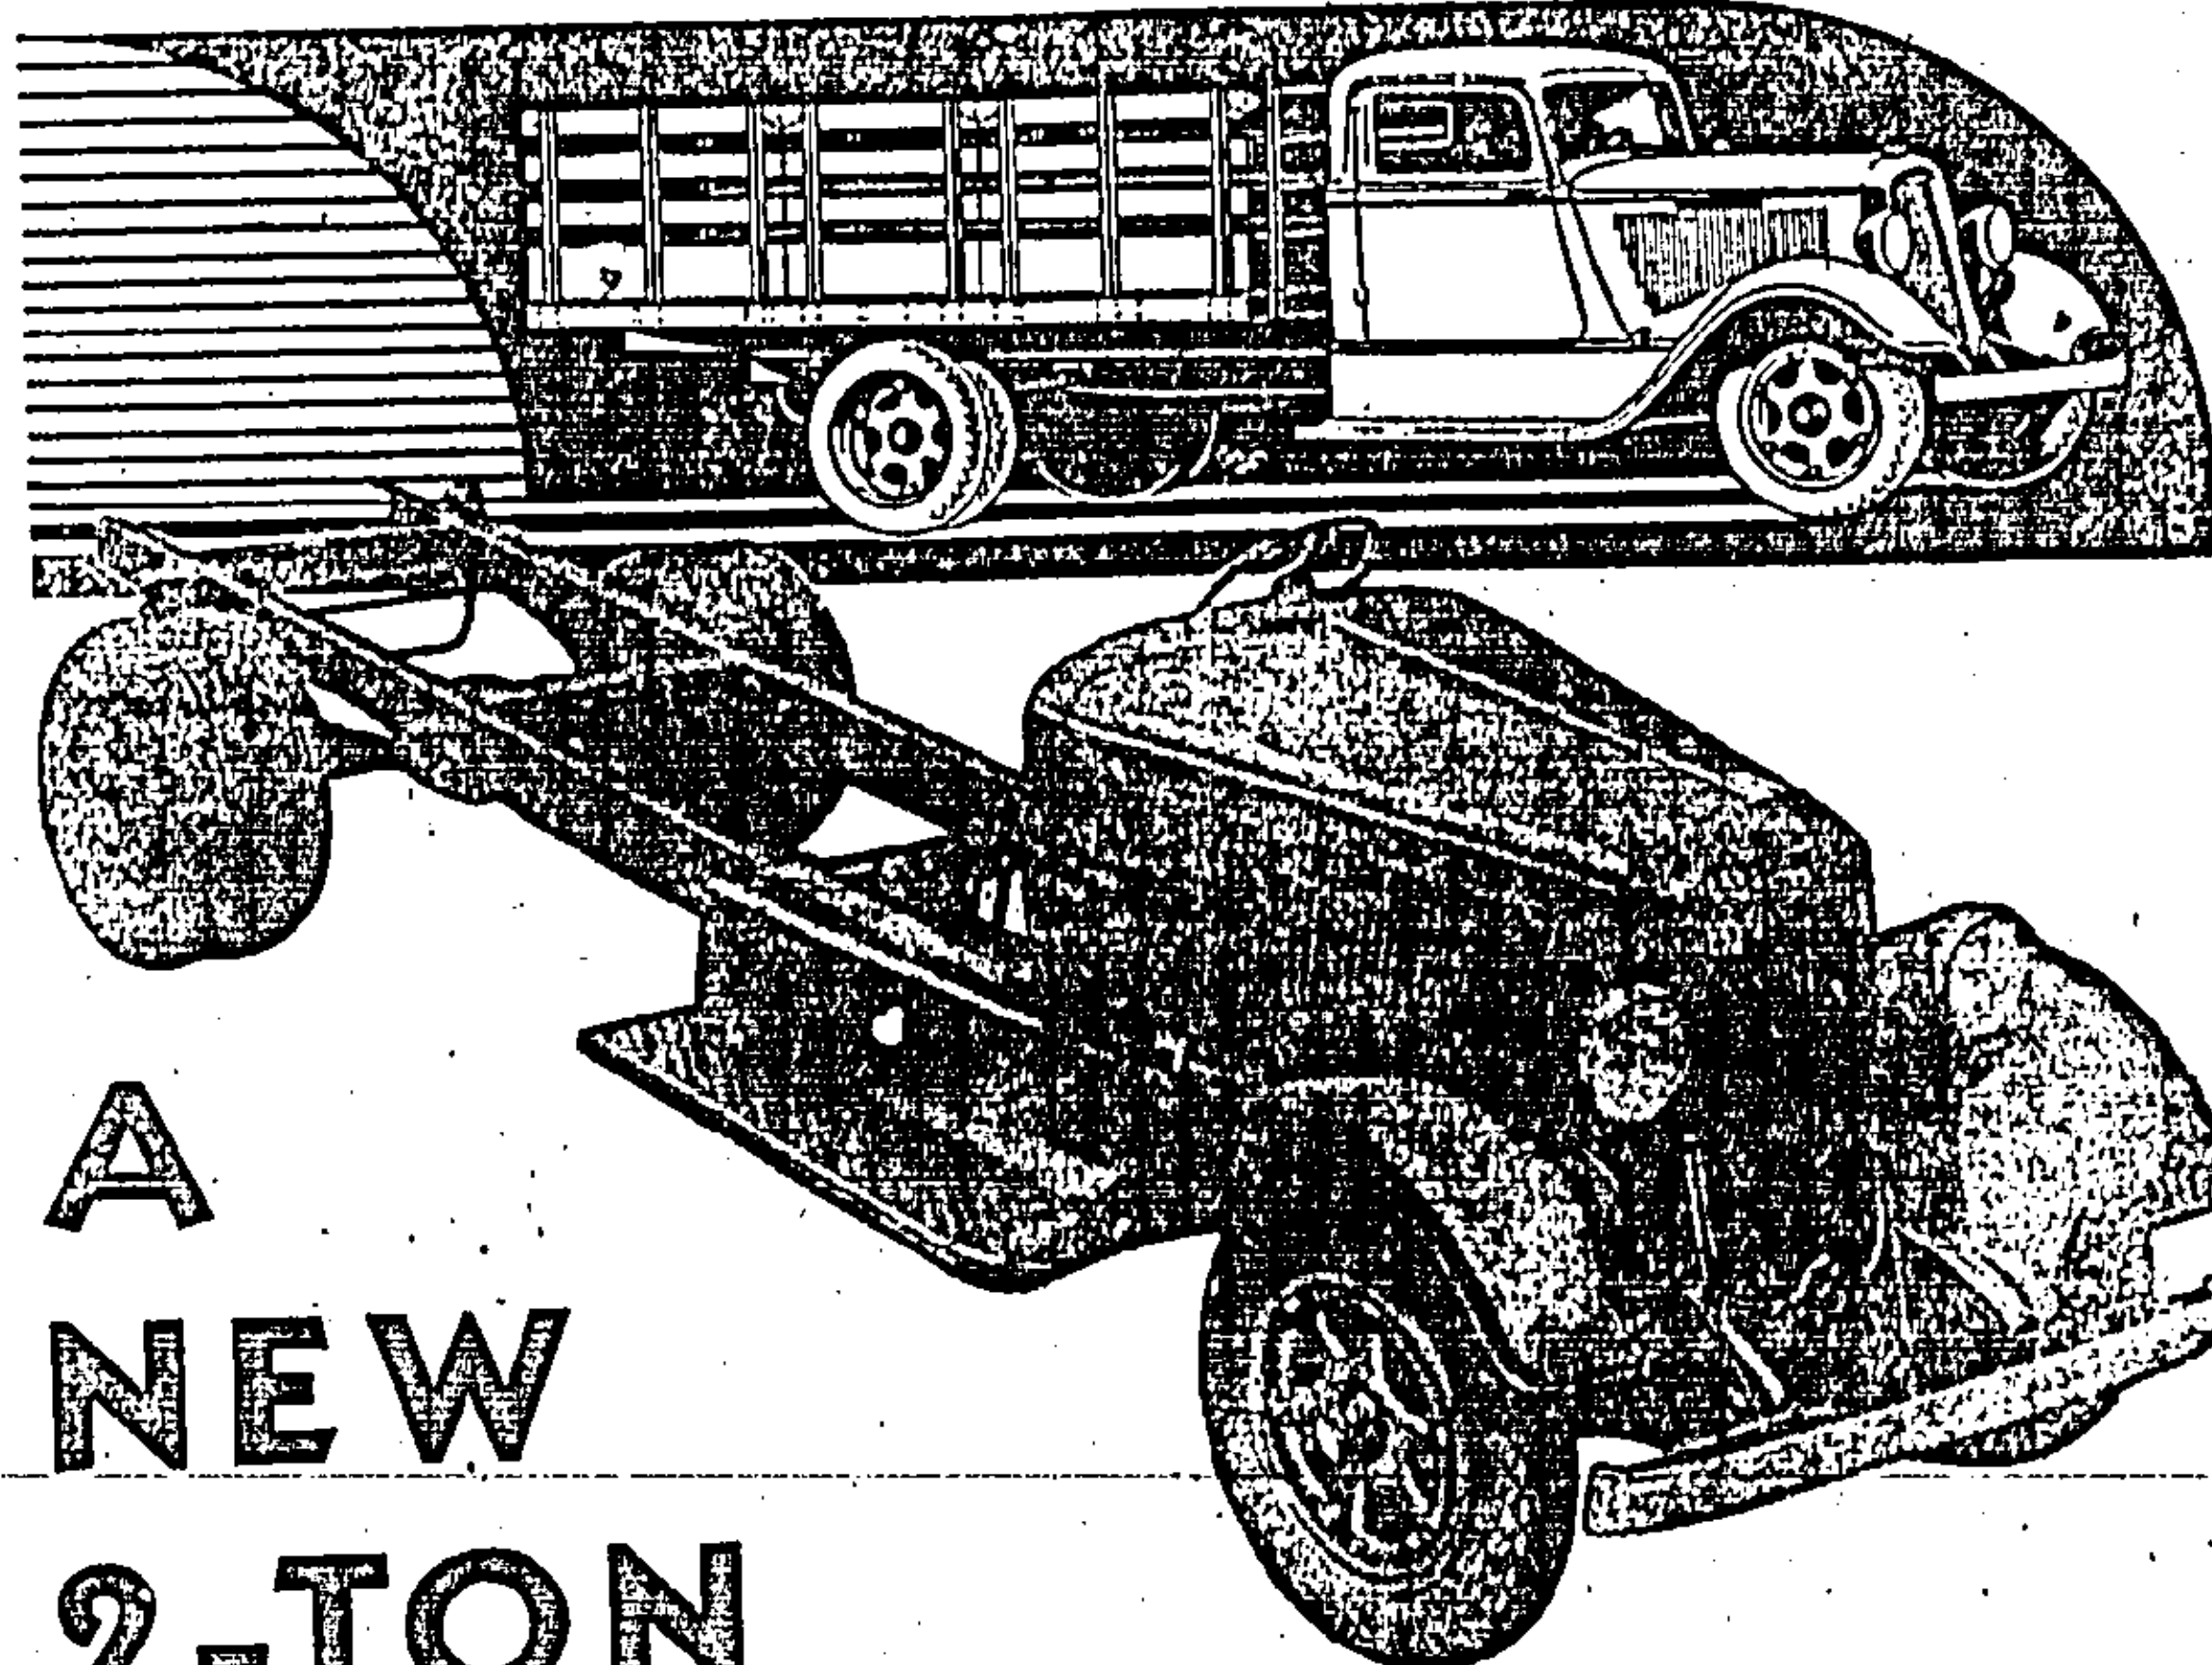

"Who was nominated?" broke in Jim. "For the legislature?"

"Oh, that caucus," said the man. "That ain't till next week."

Then, noting more clearly perhaps the appearance of his interrogator, he explained, more affably, "You see, it ain't the first Tuesday in October but the first Tuesday after the first Monday. Lot of people got fooled on that this year, because it always is the first Tuesday except when Tuesday is the first day of the month."

"Thank you," said Jim, picking up his change.

Nevertheless, he walked back across the square very slowly, revolving a tremendous problem—how to tell Emily in such a way that he might appear decent and repentant, but yet not in such a way that she could laugh.

Europe's Largest Garage

Venice Building Houses 1,000 Cars.

Venice. The largest garage in Europe was opened here on April 16, exactly one year after the inauguration of the big motor bridge connecting the city with the main land. The garage is four stories high and can accommodate 1,000 cars in halls or separate boxes, while there is room for a further 300 cars below on open terraces. ### GOODYEAR TYRE ANNIVERSARY.

All-Weather Tread Still Unchanged.

Distinction of being the oldest tyre tread in the world is enjoyed by Goodyear's all-weather tread, which has remained practically unchanged since it was first developed in 1908. The Goodyear tread this year celebrated its 25th anniversary.

First attempt at a non-skid tyre tread design was the so-called Bailey tread, developed about 1905 and featuring rounded buttons to give an uneven surface that would resist skidding. Originally these non-skid tyres were placed only on rear wheels of automobiles.

EXPLOSION IN THE "SILVER BULLET"

Mr. J. Field's Escape.

ACCIDENT HAPPENS AT 138 M. P. H.

Southport. Mr. Jack Field, the racing motorist who is hoping to break the British Empire speed record, had a narrow escape in his racing car, "Silver Bullet," on Southport Sands recently.

Mr. Field had completed a five-mile run in which he reached 138 m.p.h. His car was then fitted with special tyres for an all-out run.

The car had been started up, when, on top of the engine note, there was a shattering screech and a hole about 5 inches in diameter was blown through the casing in front of Mr. Field. Flying pieces of metal whizzed past him any one of which might have killed instantly.

Mr. Field, with great presence of mind, directed a fire extinguisher on to the car, which was just beginning to smoulder. It was then found that the top of the supercharger casing had been blown clean off.

Mr. Field said that he felt a tremendous jar on his stomach, and then pieces of metal flew out of the supercharger casing had been blown clean off.

Mr. Field said that he felt a tremendous jar on his stomach, and then pieces of metal flew out of the aluminium casing of the car in all directions. The supercharger was of a special type, which took Mr. Field and his mechanics over a week to adjust.

The supercharger is to be redesigned but Mr. Field said that the accident would not interfere with the attempt in March to break the record.

BRAKE TESTS IN TORONTO.

Accidents Decreased By 50 Per Cent.

Brake tests are being applied by the Toronto police in an attempt to reduce motoring accidents.

It is claimed that as a result of these tests road accidents in Toronto have been reduced by 50 per cent.

Any motorist in Toronto can take his car to the central police garage and have his brakes tested free. If they are defective, he is given 48 hours in which to put them right, after which time he must report to the police again. If his brakes are then found to be satisfactory, no fine is imposed.

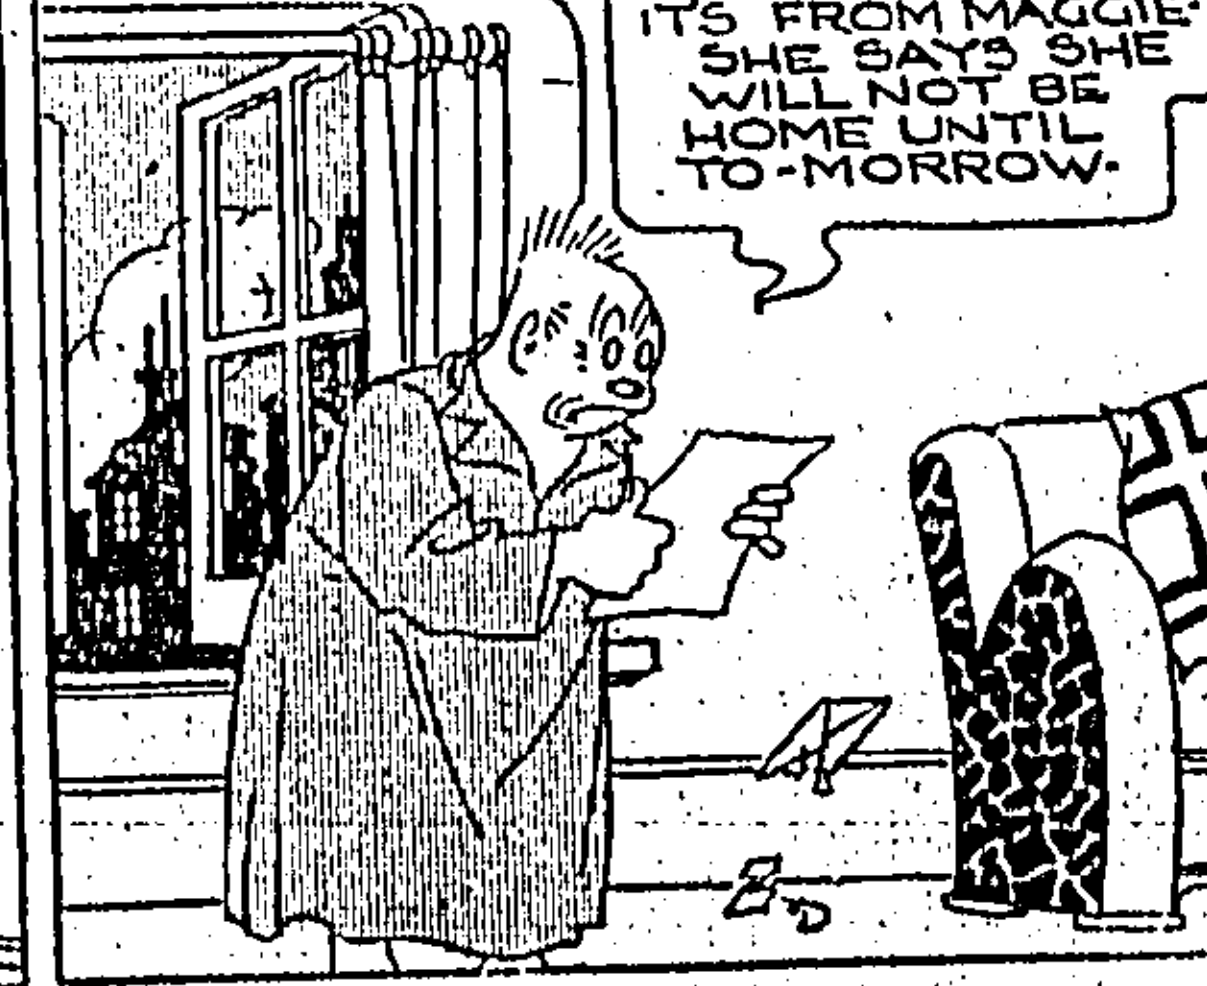

Compulsory tests are also sometimes made in the street. Mobile police officers are empowered to pull up any motorist and test his brakes. If the brakes are defective the driver is fined $10 and given 48 hours to have them put right.

Failure to report within 48 hours results in the issue of a summons and a heavier fine.

BRIDGE NOTES

UNBLOCKING

By ELY CULBERTSON

A play that most experts make almost as second nature, but some beginners and average players find extremely difficult, is what is known as an unblocking play—that is, throwing a high card which may block the run of partner's suit or the sacrifice of a high honour in order that partner, with a lower honour in the suit, may be able to gain the lead and cash winning tricks that otherwise would become valueless discards on an adversely-held long suit.

I should advise every Bridge player to study the principle underlying this play until it becomes almost second nature to recognise the situations where it can be used advantageously. Unblocking as a defensive play requires tactical skill plus imagination, but we have a right to assume these qualities in all good Bridge players.

An example of how a game contract at notrump was defeated by a clever unblocking play is given below:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH:—

S.—9 6 5 2
H.—Q 10
D.—A
C.—A 10 9 6 5 3

WEST:—

S.—K Q 7 4
H.—5 4
D.—10 9 7 6 3
C.—Q 7

SOUTH:—

S.—A J 8
H.—K 6 3 2
D.—K Q 8 4
C.—K 4

EAST:—

S.—10 3
H.—A J 9 8 7
D.—J 5 2
C.—J 8 2

The eventual contract was three notrump, reached by South after East, during the course of the bidding, had bid his very weak hearts, thus inviting a lead in that suit.

Obviously the killing lead against this contract, as well as the lead which many players would term the "natural" one, is a diamond, as that immediately removes a card of entry from Dummy.

However, this is purely a Double Dummy proposition, and East and West were fond of actualities. Naturally, West opened the suit bid by his partner—namely hearts. From the Dummy the Declarer played the Ten, and East covered with the Knave.

The Declarer refused to win this trick, as he now obviously had but a single trick in hearts and before taking it he wished to be sure that West held no more cards of the suit to lead. A better play from the Dummy would have been the Queen of hearts. However, the card actually played was the Ten, and East held the trick with the

Bravest Doctor

Budapest.
Professor Karl Kromery, a well-known doctor, had his foot cut off when he slipped in getting off a moving train.

Although in terrible pain, he supervised an operation on himself, telling the surgeons what to do.

The operation failed to save the doctor's life.—Reuter.

Knave. He then laid down the Ace of hearts and followed with the third round, which South won. The contract at this point appeared well-nigh impossible. However, making the best of a bad bargain, South now led the club King, and West made one of those sound, but brilliant, plays which definitely mark the good Bridge player.

Reasoning that if East held but two clubs there was no way of playing the club suit to stop South's march to game, he played the Queen under the King, and by this one move made certain that his partner had a card of entry which would permit the cashing of the established heart-tricks.

The play, as I said, is a very fine one, but in a sense, it is just routine. All that is required for the making of such a play is an elementary knowledge of arithmetic and a somewhat more than merely elementary knowledge of the way to play cards.

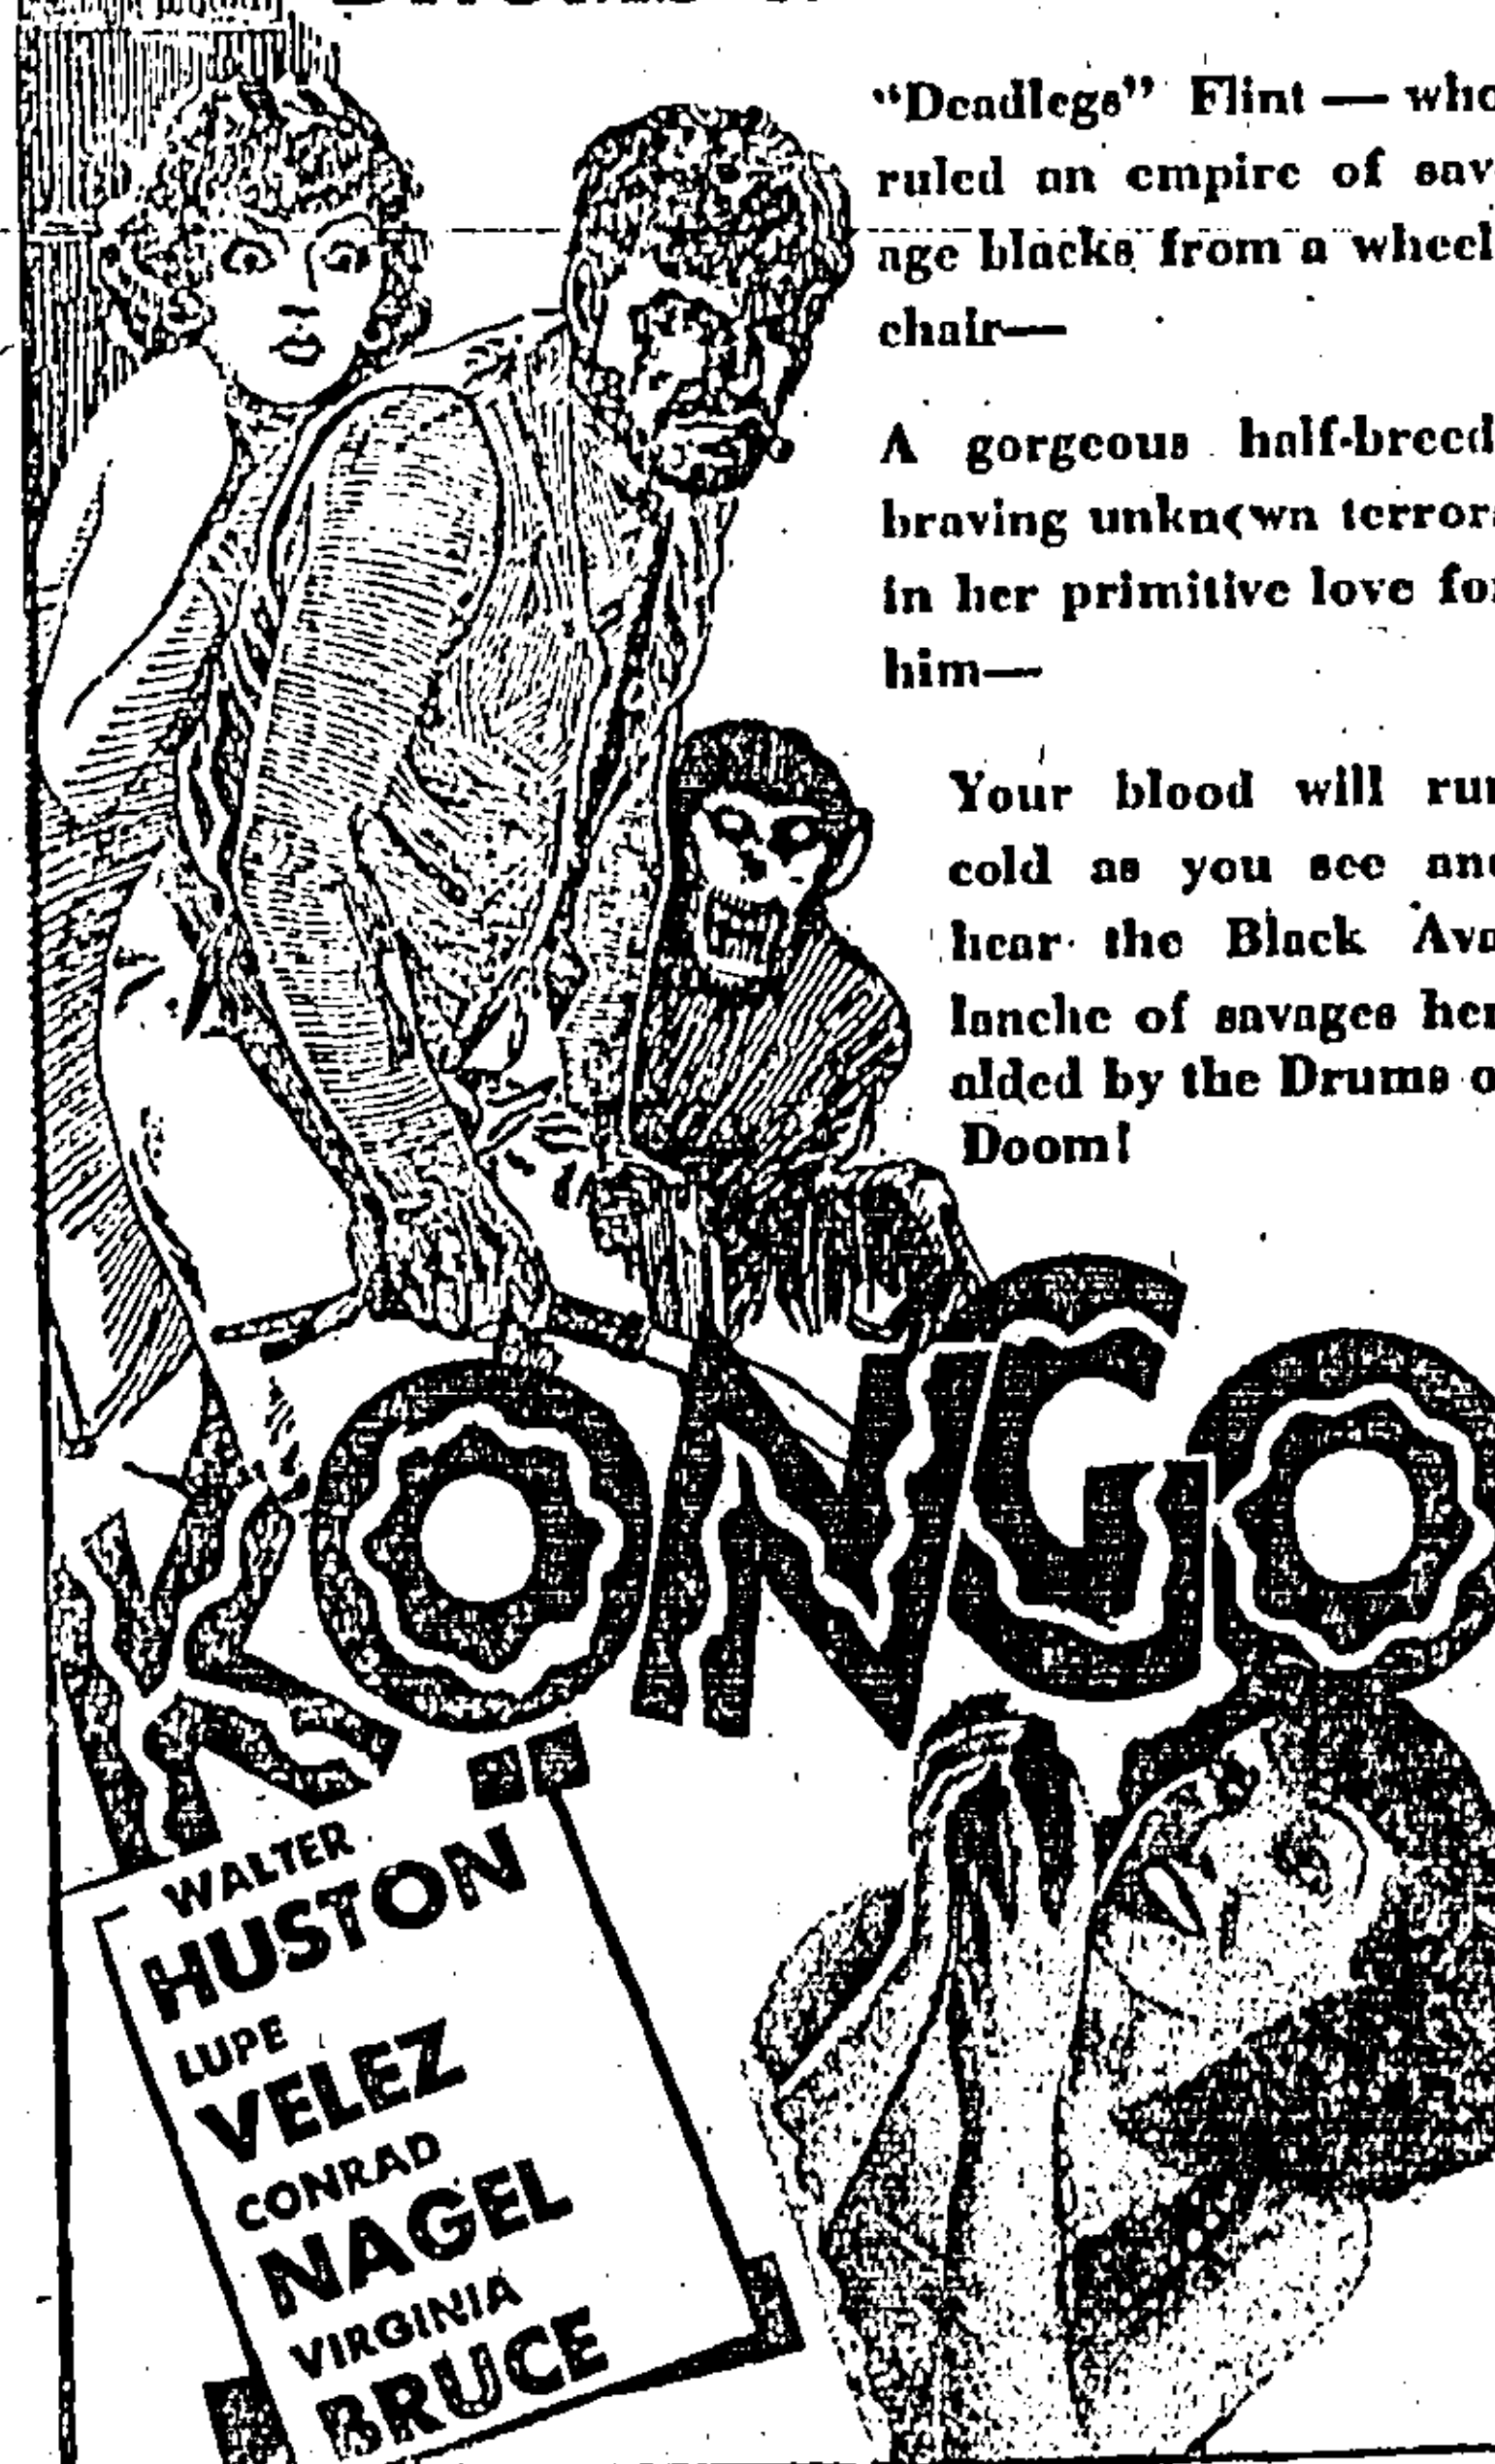

If the contract is to be defeated here at all, defeated it depends upon East, and not West, winning the club trick if there is a trick in one trick. For East to win it as clubs available to them. For West to win the club trick means just one trick. For East to win it assures the defeat of the contract.

SENSATIONAL DISCLOSURES ON OPIUM TRAFFIC

500 WATCH OPEN DANCE COMPETITION

Chinese Couple Win
Premier Honours.

HONG KONG HOTEL
FUNCTION

Ninety-one people voted Miss Lily Lai and Mr. W. M. Leong winners of the Colony's first open dancing contest, when the finals were held in the Grill Room of the Hong Kong Hotel, yesterday evening. Close on 500 votes were taken, the judging being by popular favour.

The crowd at the tea dance, numbering 538, is the largest crowd to attend a tea dance in the history of the Hotel.

The second prize was won by Miss Violet Lee and Mr. Mok Yue-ham, with 85 votes, while Miss Christina Perpetua and Mr. Tam Kwok-wah were third with 76 votes.

The girls who gained the two premier prizes are employed as partners in Colony cabarets.

Before presenting the prizes, Mr. Harry Hon Sling made a short speech complimenting the contestants on the high standard of their dancing. The prizes for the ladies were presented by Mrs. Sullivan.

The first prize for ladies was a complete Max Factor compact beauty set, and the second prize a handbag size, also donated by the Sincere Company. The men's first prize was two seats at the King's Theatre for three months, and seats for 1½ months for the second.

POPULARITY ASSURED

The popularity of the contest, which was sponsored by the Fox Movietone Company and the King's Theatre, in conjunction with the Hong Kong Hotel, was evident from the record crowd, and the enthusiasm which greeted the announcement of the event. Although every available space was booked long before the function started, many more couples were accommodated. The arrangements were under the personal supervision of Mr. A. Piovaneli, manager of the Hong Kong and Peninsula Hotels.

COMPLETE SATISFACTION

Seen by the Sunday Herald representative after the function, Mr. A. L. Caplan, local manager of the Fox Movietone Company, stated that he was extremely satisfied with the success of the contest.

"While it is a unique form of advertising for the picture, 'George White's Scandals', in conjunction with which it was run, it has produced for the public something new in the way of entertainment and may lead to further similar functions," he said.

Mr. Caplan added that the good results of the novel advertising campaign had already been noted by the bookings at the King's Theatre.

1934 CHICAGO WORLD FAIR COMMENCES

Streets Of Shanghai
New Addition

HENRY FORD'S ENTERPRISE

The gates swung open today to admit the advance guard of the expected millions of visitors to Chicago's 1934 World's Fair, extensively revamped from last year's exposition. They led to grounds and buildings constructed at a cost exceeding $44,000,000 state officials of a Century of Progress.

The fair itself spent $2,000,000 for the renovating and alteration of buildings and for landscaping. The latter, incidentally, mark one of the greatest changes of the 1934 fair from its predecessor. More parks and garden spots have been created, and 35,000 chairs and benches added, to bring the total outside free seats to 100,000.

FORD'S 11-ACRE DISPLAY

Heading the newcomers is Mr. Henry Ford, whose exhibit covers 11 acres and is the largest on the grounds. Mr. Ford recently announced his intention of putting $1,500,000 into his exhibit. Besides an enormous building, it contains a spacious and well landscaped garden.

In the amusement section are the new Streets of Shanghai. Their builders have estimated the cost of each of these villages at from $150,000 to $250,000.

Mr. C. P. Chan, representative of the Canton Merchants' League, expressed great optimism regarding the success of the Fair when he passed through Hong Kong on April 23, en route to Chicago.

Mr. Chan, who was accompanied by Mrs. Chan, took a large shipment of Chinese articles for exhibition and sale.

A new building houses a display which would have been illegal last year. It is that of the Hiram Walker Company, distillers.

GIRL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Leung Kwai-chi, an 18-year-old girl, living at 25 Hollywood Road, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday, suffering from the effects of lysol poisoning, said to have been self-administered. Her condition, however, is not serious, it is stated.

News has been received in the Colony that Mr. Douglas Jenkins, Consul-General for the United States in Hong Kong, has been appointed Consul-General in Berlin.

Austrian Heimwehren Badly Wounded by Terrorists on Frontier

Vienna. According to reports from Dorf an der Prasn, in Upper Austria, two college professors, members of the Heimwehren, were attacked and seriously wounded by terrorists. Two men, suspected to be the assailants, were arrested.

On the other hand, a demonstration of the Patriotic Front members held with the participation of the Governor of Austria in the frontier township of Schaerding was disturbed by German Nazis, who are said to have sent up from Bavarian territory a balloon loaded with explosives. Other reports state that serious clashes occurred at Schaerding between Hitlerites and members of Austrian auxiliary police force. Ten Heimwehren troops are reported to have been wounded in the clash, while the number of wounded Nazis is still unknown.
